Moscow Talks Touch Upon Reorganization After War; Germans Enlist Boys

Libya Drive Slows

British Attack Seems to Have Eased in Africa

(By The Associated Press)
Foreign Minister Anthony Eden has reached an agreement in Moscow with Soviet Premier Joseph Stalin looking toward the "utter defeat of Hitlerite Germany," it was announced in London and Moscow.

The Moscow talks, it was disclosed, dipped into post-war reorganization. They went on simultaneously with those in Washington between Prime Minister Churchill and President Roosevelt. And the four men were said to have kept constantly in touch with each other.

It may have been more than coincidence that while the British were announcing the Moscow conference aim of "utter defeat of Hitlerite Germany," President Roosevelt messaged the Filipinos that the resources of the United States, Britain, Netherlands East Indies and China "have been dedicated x x x to the utter and complete defeat of the Japanese warlords."

Fledglings are Used

On the Russian war front the Red army troops were reported to have shattered a division of German fledglings of 17 to 18 years of age on the Kalinin front; ripped through the German lines south of Moscow to Likhvin, 50 miles west of Tula, and Belev, 50 miles southeast of Kaluga, menacing the German retreat to Smolensk; and captured Novosil, 100 miles south of Tula in a drive on Orel, 40 miles to the west.

Reports reached Moscow of the capture by the Russians of more than 450 towns and villages. In Libya, the advancing British pressed the fleeing axis forces still farther west, but their pace seemed to have slackened and Rome and Berlin, for the first time in recent days, claimed to have scored telling counter-blows.

British Lose Equipment

Both said 58 British tanks and armored cars were destroyed in a repulsed British thrust south of Agadabia and the Fascist communiqué declared a heavy British cruiser and two torpedo boats were hit with aerial torpedoes in an attack on a British naval formation in the eastern Mediterranean.

Prime Minister Churchill, having quietly taken his leave of Washington after an historic visit to the United States, arrived at Ottawa today and received a tumultuous welcome in the Canadian capital.

To Await Grand Jury

Following an investigation which has been underway for some time, Troopers Reilly and Judge of the B.C.I. on Sunday arrested Donald Sickler, 24, of 16 North Front street, Kingston, on a charge of burglary, third degree. He was arraigned before Justice Percy Bush of the town of Ulster, waived to the county jail to await the action of the grand jury. Sickler is held for connection with the burglarizing of unoccupied houses in the Ruby section during October and November. Numerous articles were taken from the houses and sold to county junk dealers.

Ellenville Plant And Apartments Damaged by Fire

Structure on Center Street Used for Handkerchief Factory and Upper Rooms Burn

A large frame building at 151 Center street, Ellenville, housing a handkerchief factory, was damaged by a fire which broke out at 9 o'clock Sunday morning.

When the firemen arrived dense clouds of smoke were pouring from the building, the entire interior of the factory portion, which occupies the first floor, fronting on Center street, being ablaze. The fire was brought under control after it had badly burned the factory section, a large quantity of finished and unfinished stock and damaged machinery and equipment.

Harry and Jacob Wicentowsky have operated the factory the past 14 years and were busy about the place Sunday morning. One of them stated that the first intimation he had of the fire was when smoke began pouring into the room. Fred J. Frear, chief of the Ellenville fire department, said this morning that he was making further investigation to ascertain the cause of the fire, but that apparently it had started near one of the machines, probably from some defect in wiring.

Mr. Wicentowsky said that he had been unable to estimate the damage until he could determine how badly large piles of stock had been injured and how much damage had been done to the large number of sewing machines and other equipment in the factory.

Apartments over the factory, which for many years was run by Samuel Herskowitz, owner of the building and resident there, were damaged by smoke and water and holes cut in the partitions by the firemen in order to control the fire, which was sweeping up through the partitions.

Loss to building and factory, which will run into several thousands of dollars, is probably covered by insurance.

Years ago the building was occupied for hotel purposes, known as the Arlington Hotel and conducted by the late James W. Russell of Ellenville. Later the hotel was run by William J. Litchrod.

At the same time the scholarly Utah legislator, who spent seven years in Japan as a Mormon missionary, warned against underestimating the fighting power of the Far Eastern enemy. Japan may score some additional early victories and some further new surprises, Thomas said in an interview, "but she can't survive because she is surrounded

Three Men Chosen For Tire Rationing Board in Kingston

Cashin, Matthews, Rodie Are Selected by Mayor; Office Space Is to Be Furnished

Mayor C. J. Heiselman today announced the appointment of John M. Cashin of the law firm of Cashin and Ewig, Stanley J. Matthews of F. B. Matthews and Company, and Robert R. Rodie of the Kingston Coal Company, as members of the automobile tire rationing board of Kingston. This board was appointed by the mayor at the request of Governor Lehman, and they will have full charge of the distribution of auto tires in the city, and only automobilists who obtain rationing cards from the board will be permitted to obtain new tires.

Under the provisions outlined for the duties of the new board the city authorities are required to furnish the board with all

Tire Rationing Is Expected to Cut Use of Gasoline

Rubber Conservation Might Delay Order to Force Less Use of Motor Fuel in U. S.

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—A 35 per cent reduction in the nation's 1942 civilian gasoline consumption was considered likely today by government petroleum experts because of new restrictions making it impossible for the ordinary motorist to obtain new tires or inner tubes for his car. The effect of these regulations, these officials believed, would be to make motorists use their cars less to conserve their tires for necessary motoring and emergencies. Gasoline consumption accordingly would be sharply reduced.

The same quarters considered that the rubber conservation program might delay the need of direct consumer rationing of motor fuel, in event the war effort ties up the extensive transportation facilities used to distribute some 7,200,000,000 gallons of gasoline annually throughout the country.

At the direction of Secretary of Interior Ickes, the petroleum coordinator, a consumer gasoline rationing system has been prepared for use in an emergency demands such action. Its details have not been revealed. The petroleum coordination office has become particularly alert to the transportation of oil since the United States entered the war. In view of a possibility a substantial portion of the great fleet of oil tankers now supplying the coastal areas might be needed to fuel the forces fighting in the Pacific. Petroleum supply in the United States, which possesses great resources of oil, is principally a matter of transportation. Upon the transfer last summer of 80 to 100 tankers to the British,

Commandos Sink 8 Enemy Ships, Burn Vital War Goods

Raid on Small Norwegian Island Is Highly Effective, London Report Says

London, Dec. 29 (AP)—Eight enemy ships totaling 15,650 tons, oil tanks, ammunitions stores and a quilling-owned industrial plant were destroyed during a British raid on the small island of Vaagso 100 miles north of Bergen, Norway, it was announced officially today.

The raid was carried out Saturday by the mysterious Commando force of the British army, aided by light forces of the home fleet and by the R.A.F.

The story of the daring thrust against Germany's war machine was told in a communiqué issued jointly by the admiralty, the war office and the air ministry.

Vaagso is the assembly point for German convoys carrying supplies to the far northern front in Russia and an officer who took part in the raid said the destruction of shipping had harmed German communications to that front.

The entire German garrison on an island involved in the attack was captured or killed, the communiqué said.

"An enemy tank was put out of action and an oil tank and ammunitions stores were destroyed," the communiqué said.

"A wireless station and a certain industrial plant owned by a quilling and known to be operating for the Germans were destroyed."

An officer of the combined operations headquarters said the German casualties totaled 120 men and 85 prisoners were taken.

A number of Norwegian civilians returned with the Commandos also.

The Commandos suffered "some casualties" but the raid was called a complete success.

"Although on a small scale," this raid was a good example of the combined operation in which the royal navy, army and Royal Air Force each played an equally important and interdependent part," the combined communiqué declared.

Official Story

The official story of the raid follows: Light forces of the home fleet began the action when they arrived off Vaagso Island just before daylight and, under cover of an air-raid smoke screen, landed a force of Commandos and some Norwegian troops in naval assault landing craft.

German coast defense guns opened fire on the British ships but were silenced by the guns of the fleet and by aerial bombs.

The planes gave further support by laying smoke screens to mask the ships and by machine-gunning batteries and barracks on nearby Ragundo Island.

There were two main military landings—one on the small island of Maaloy and the other at the southwestern extremity of the town of South Vaagso.

The entire garrison of Maaloy was killed or captured and the military store houses and ammunitions dumps were blown up. A battery of four guns also was destroyed.

"At South Vaagso the Germans put up stiff resistance and in street fighting we suffered some casualties before the town could be brought completely under our control," the communiqué said. "An enemy tank was put out of action and oil tanks and ammunitions stores were destroyed. A wireless station and a certain industrial plant owned by a quilling, and known to be operating for the Germans, were destroyed. A total of eight enemy ships, including five merchant vessels, two armed trawlers and one armed tug totaling 15,650 tons were destroyed. The merchant vessels beached themselves to avoid capture and were destroyed by our naval

Full Help Will Be Given Beleaguered Isles, He Says; Navy Says Fleet Is Active

Early Says Use of Word 'Redeem' Does Not Necessarily Mean Islands Might Be Lost; Domei Gives Forecast of Jap Victory

Washington, Dec. 29 (AP)—President Roosevelt pledged to the war-scarred people of the Philippines today that "their freedom will be redeemed and their independence established and protected."

"The entire resources, in men and material of the United States stand behind that pledge," the President said. At almost the same time that the short wave radio broadcast the President's personal message to the Filipinos, the Navy issued a statement saying the fleet was intensively engaged against the Japs.

"The fleet is not idle," the Navy said, "the United States Navy is following an intensive and well-planned campaign against the Japanese forces which will result in positive assistance to the defense of the Philippine Islands."

In connection with the President's message, Stephen Early, Mr. Roosevelt's secretary, commented that it might take time for ample aid to reach the Philippines on account of the long distances involved and remarked that in a military sense, distances many times are synonymous with time measurements.

In response to a question as to whether Mr. Roosevelt's use of the word "redeem" indicated that the chief executive felt that the islands might be lost temporarily, Early replied, "I shouldn't think so, no."

The President arranged a relatively light schedule for the day, making separate appointments with Dr. Alexander Louden, the Netherlands minister, and Admiral Ernest J. King, commander in chief of the United States fleet.

Domei Forecasts Victory

As Mr. Roosevelt's message was made public, Domei already was anticipating victory. The official Japanese news agency reported that the Mikado's expeditionary forces on Luzon were concentrating their main efforts on capturing Manila "before New Year's."

The Domei announcement occasioned no great surprise here, for it is well known that the Japanese seek to have their victories fall on important festivals—and New Year's is Japan's greatest holiday.

It was noted that the Japanese were able to time their conquest of Hongkong to coincide with Christmas—the day which marks the anniversary of the present emperor's accession.

The navy department announcement, which was made public a short time after President Roosevelt's message last night, carried (Continued on Page 20)

Japanese Say 'Chute' Troops Are Landed at Sumatra and Ipoh Is Captured

Destroyer Hit

U. S. Destroyer Suffers Slight Damage Due to Plane Attack

(By The Associated Press)
United States submarines have sunk two more Japanese vessels, one a transport and the other a supply ship, in the Far East, the navy announced today as a new and possibly menacing phase developed in the grim battle of the Philippines.

The brief naval communiqué also acknowledged that a United States destroyer had suffered slight damage and minor casualties under enemy air attack but did not identify the vessel or give any other particulars.

Determined American and Filipino forces were reported in Manila to be holding their lines, even bettering them at one point, against steadily growing Japanese strength in northern Luzon but a war communiqué in Washington suggested that a deep American withdrawal was in prospect or already had been undertaken.

General MacArthur, it said, had shortened his lines and consolidated most of his troops in Pampanga province to face heavily augmented enemy infantry, cavalry and tank regiments "composed of veteran soldiers with modern equipment."

Although this meant a new line virtually mid-way between the Gulf of Lingayen and Manila, it indicated an American stand in terrain long envisaged as a battlefield against invasion and the scene of repeated peacetime rehearsals.

The northern border of Pampanga is about 55 miles above Manila. The southern border is only 25 miles distant.

Time apparently was becoming a vital factor in the fierce battle of the Philippines as the Japanese, thus far unable to build up a crushing force despite their already overwhelming numbers, poured men ashore and the United States gave the beleaguered islanders hope that help was on the way.

Elsewhere, the war bulletin said, there was "nothing to report."

Heavy Losses Suffered

It acknowledged that both sides had suffered heavy losses but declared that the island's defenders "despite constant fighting against heavy odds, are in high spirits and are offering stubborn resistance."

Although the Philippines remained the focus of Japan's campaign in the Pacific, the enemy widened and intensified its offensive in the vast spaces of the Pacific.

In the ring of positions Japan apparently is attempting to draw around Singapore, Britain's prime far eastern defense bastion, Japanese were said to have:

Put paratroopers ashore near Medan, on the east coast of the Dutch island of Sumatra, flanking Malaya across the narrow Malacca Strait.

Captured Ipoh, the communications and tin mining center in Perak, about 290 miles north of Singapore on the Malayan peninsula.

Captured Kuching, the capital of Sarawak, on the British part of the island of Borneo.

Ipoh is on the line of the direct Japanese thrust toward Singapore and Tokyo declared that its capture opened to the invaders "modern roads and methods of transportation for a power drive toward Singapore."

Although the fall of Ipoh was not specifically announced in Singapore, the British acknowledged that the Japanese had swept south of it, saying only that their forces were "in close contact with the enemy."

Elsewhere in Malaya, a communiqué said, the situation is unchanged.

Shortage of Milk Testers in State

No One Available to Fill Vacancies, Says Tailby

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 29 — The big problem among New York dairy herd improvement associations at the present time is the scarcity of supervisors, or milk testers, says G. W. Tailby of the state college of agriculture.

Five of the 140 New York associations are not being tested this month, and at least four other supervisors will leave on January 1 he adds. No one is available to fill these vacancies, despite the fact that dairymen are anxious to have their records continued.

"This service is especially important now in helping dairymen to maintain high and efficient production. Most herds on test produce more milk to the cow than the state average, something like 3,000 more pounds of milk and 124 more pounds of butterfat."

Mr. Tailby announces that the high herd for November is owned by William Burgess of Monroe, Orange county. His ten cows averaged 1224 pounds of milk and 54.7 pounds of butterfat to the cow.

The only other herd to average more than 50 pounds of butterfat is owned by A. G. Bouck and son of Auburn, Cayuga county. Their 21 cows averaged 1214 pounds of milk and 50.8 pounds of butterfat.

The largest 305-day record reported during the month was for a Holstein cow owned by A. T. Personous of Genoa, Cayuga county, with a production of 19,783 pounds of milk and 711.4 pounds of butterfat.

A substantial contribution toward the $45,000 American Red Cross War Fund to be raised by the Ulster County Committee will help keep the fighting men healthy, happy and efficient.

Receipts of opening performances of two new theatres in Rio de Janeiro, Brazil, will be donated to an institution which gives free lunches to poor children.

Boom Days Have Alaska on Toes

By SAM JACKSON
AP Feature Service Writer
Juneau, Alaska — The situation in the Pacific created a boom in Alaska which rivaled the great gold rush of the nineties even before war broke out.

The army and Navy striving to make up lost time in creation of strategic bases, shipped men and materials northward this year in a volume unequalled since the heyday of the Klondike.

The number of armed forces in Alaska is a military secret. But figures disclosed by the federal employment service indicate that civilian workmen, plus their families and persons moving in for collateral business enterprises, almost equal the 18,800 men who went over Chilkoot Pass in the greatest previous boom—that of 1898.

This does no sound big in the United States proper, but in must be remembered that Alaska's population in 1940 was only 71,911. The largest town in the territory, Juneau, has only 5,748 people.

An example of the snowballing boom is the Saxton family of Anchorage. Saxton senior built a skating rink. Then he sent for his wife. Five daughters and a future son-in-law came too. Such migration as this does not show up in employment figures.

Big Order
The navy is building three major bases at Dutch Harbor, Kodiak and Sitka. The army has several major developments including a base at Anchorage and Fairbanks. In addition to these there are many smaller projects, largely airfields. The Civil Aeronautics Authority has its hand in on some of them.

The land to be protected by these, counting peninsulas and islands, sprawls nearly as far and wide at the United States itself. The net area is 584,000 square miles, about one-fifth of the mother country's.

Money to Burn
Wages on these projects have been high compared with those in the states. Rush conditions have allowed much extra work at time-and-a-half or double time. An electrician recently exhibited a $205 check for a week's work.

At one remote airfield the minimum wage for expert mechanics was $25 for eight hours.

Answer Call for More Milk, Eggs
Canvass Shows Farmers Plan Food Increases in '42
Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 29 — New York farmers are responding to the nation's call to produce more foodstuffs needed to win the war, according to Ralph Y. DeWolfe, chairman of the U. S. Department of Agriculture's Defense Board for New York state.

He predicted today that the Empire State would in 1942 produce "well over" the 6.3 per cent more eggs and five per cent more milk requested by the federal government.

DeWolfe's prediction was based on returns from every agricultural country in the state-wide canvass completed by committee of the Agricultural Adjustment Administration. More than one hundred thousand farms were visited and are included in the returns compiled by a special committee of the State Defense Board.

Milk and eggs were the only items for which specific goals were suggested in New York state. The returns indicate that farmers intend to increase egg production 27 per cent and milk slightly more

If war came to Alaska, this veteran marksman could give a good accounting—and then some. But right now chances are he's busy working on a defense project, getting a stake in Alaska's greatest boom since the days of '98.

At another field a welder was offered exactly double his current earnings at Juneau. The great Alaska Juneau gold mine stated in its financial report that a slump in production was caused by workmen being lured away to highly paid defense work.

Tapering Off
The territorial employment service nevertheless has warned hopeful workmen not to rush north. Distances between the scattered outposts of civilization are great and both travel and living are expensive. Furthermore, the service says, hours are being stabilized and the big overtime pay is diminishing.

Added to the defense jackpot of 1941 has been another golden shower—a salmon fishing season in southeastern Alaska of unprecedented richness. Indians with a puffing little outboard motor have made $3,000 to $5,000 in a few weeks work in some cases. The Scandinavians who own the larger boats have found them-than nine percent, as compared with 1941.

Need Help on Farm
Many of the statements were made conditionally, as farmers said they would increase production "if farm help, feed, and other materials were available and if the price were adequate to take care of the necessary costs."

Even though some of the estimates may represent enthusiastic willingness on the part of farmers to cooperate in the Nation's war effort, Mr. DeWolfe said there was no question about reaching the 1942 goals desired by the federal government in this state.

To bring about the increases, on top of the high production in 1941 and the growing scarcity of farm labor, he pointed out the necessity of unusually good management and planning not only by farmers but by others whose business is inter-related, such as farm supply dealers, as well as public agencies.

The survey also revealed a general expectation of more farm gardens in 1942, and on larger areas. The New York canvass was held simultaneously with those in other states to help determine how

Winter Squash Has Many Uses

Food Experts Say It Is Both Cheap and Good Food

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 29.—Many dishes can be prepared from winter squash, say the foods folks at the New York state college of home economics.

This year winter squash is plentiful and low in price and should be served frequently, they say. Plain baked squash requires little preparation. Cut the squash in pieces of a size suitable for serving, remove the seeds and spongy parts, season the pieces with salt, pepper, and a little butter, and put them in the oven (350 to 400 degrees F.) for about 40 minutes. A little brown sugar sprinkled over the top of each piece gives additional flavor.

Another way to bake squash is to cut it in three-inch squares, place them in a baking pan and season them with salt, pepper and brown sugar. Dot them with butter, add about a cup of boiling water, cover the pan, and bake in a moderately hot oven until tender, or about 40 minutes. Then remove the cover and bake the squash until it is browned. Pour melted butter over the surface of the squash and serve it hot.

Spanish squash is made thus: Cut three slices of bacon into small pieces and fry them. Add one large onion, sliced thin, to the bacon and cook these until the onion is yellow. Then add a medium-sized squash, cut in thin crosswise slices; one green pepper, cut in small pieces; 2 cups of tomatoes, and a little salt and pepper. Cover it all and cook it slowly until it is tender.

Squash may be baked with pineapple: Steam the squash and place a layer of squash slices about 1/4 inch thick in a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle this with 1/4 cup of brown sugar, a pinch of salt, and add a layer of crushed pineapple. Then dot with bits of butter and repeat the layers. Bake in a moderate oven (350 degrees F.) for about an hour.

Squash puff is made of mashed squash topped with marshmallows, brown sugar, maple sirup or honey, all browned in the oven. Maryland squash is mashed squash combined with raisins; squash croquettes is mashed squash combined with corn flakes and fried in deep fat. Other variations are: Squash biscuits, squash custard, and the old stand-by squash pie.

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Dec. 27.—In their customary gay and festive Christmas mood, the children and young people of Woodstock assembled on the village green, under a gayly illuminated tree for the singing of carols on Christmas eve. There was a Santa Claus, and the singing was under the direction of Mathew Chambers. The scripture was read by the Rev. Harvey I. Todd of the Reformed Church. Candy and oranges were distributed.

Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Herrick entertained a party of friends Christmas night.

Ellenville Concern Sued For Wage Violations

New York, Dec. 26 (Special).—Suit was instituted in Federal Court here on Wednesday against the Wilson Handkerchief Co., Inc., 151 Center street, Ellenville, by Baird Snyder III, as acting director of the Wage and Hours Division of the Department of Labor. The Ellenville firm is charged in it with having failed to maintain the minimum wage and hour standards set by law.

These standards required the payment of minimum wages of 32 1/2 cents an hour for the year ending July 15, 1941, and of 30 cents an hour for the previous

WHO HE IS

NOBUO FURUIYE, 23-year-old American citizen was born in the United States of Japanese parents.

At the outbreak of war with Japan he immediately volunteered for service in the U. S. Army, "for any sort of duty."

Throughout the nation many other second-generation Japanese-Americans were making similar decisions.

Furuiye was born on a produce farm near Lafayette, Colo.; attended grade and high school there and in his senior year was sent to Japan by his parents so that he might become familiar with conditions and problems there. He attended Japanese missionary school for two years.

Then came the war with China. He decided Japan was the aggressor and returned to America.

"I'm positive that the United States is going to win this war. The Japanese people, you know, don't have freedom of speech and freedom of the press, as we do over here."

"The private citizen can't even have a short wave radio because the militarists fear he may hear something they don't want him to hear on international broadcasts."

"The militarists have been telling the people that the United States is responsible for all of the Japanese troubles, including the failures of the army in China and things like that."

"They have built up that line so that the ordinary Japanese people don't know the true facts. Only the militarists know what is going on."

"Japan isn't equipped to fight a war with the United States. After five years the people are tired of the war with China."

"The Japanese are not a warring people. They didn't want this war. As soon as they learn the true facts, the morale of the nation will crumble. Japan will collapse."

YOUR RIGHT TO DRIVE IS IN DANGER

After an automobile accident involving bodily injury or property damage of $25 or more, all drivers, if uninsured, must deposit with the state a sum sufficient to pay the estimated damages—not to exceed $11,000—or lose the right to drive.

Flashes of Life Sketched in Brief

(By The Associated Press)

Illegal Tackle
Carlisle, Pa.—Coach Arthur D. Kahler of Dickinson College (won two, lost five, tied one) just did get through the football season without losing his shirt—and now that's gone.

Thieves backed a truck up to a window of his home while he was away and carted off silverware valued at $700, a shotgun, automatic pistol, ammunition, several men's suits, numerous shirts and a bank containing nearly $50 in silver.

Slight Change
Albany, N. Y.—Selective Service headquarters chuckled over the "correction" submitted by a

New York draft registrant who a year ago listed his dependents as "my wife, one child and one unborn child."

"The one unborn should have been two," wrote the registrant, "as it turned out to be twins."

Won't Be Long Now
Indianapolis—Chemist A. R. Albright looked over news stories about citizens in Akron, O., Anderson, Ind., and elsewhere offering rewards for the first American aviator to bomb Tokyo and then brought forth his own proposition.

He will give a $100 defense bond to the One-Hundredth Yankee pilot who bombs the Japanese capital.

Fistie Surgery
Oakland, Calif.—Patrolman Earl Rumetsch had foresight in ignoring his physicians' advice. They counseled an operation but he resorted only to tape after his nose was punched away by a man he sought to arrest 10 days ago.

Christmas eve he was punched by seven men—one blow striking his nose—as he sought to arrest a drunk.

Now physicians say he needs no operation. His nose is back in line.

Appendicitis is a major cause of death among children, warns the Census Bureau. Last year 1,789 children between the ages of 5 and 15 died from appendicitis. Many of these lives could have been saved by prompt surgical intervention, the Census Bureau says.

IMPORTANT TO ALL GAS USERS!

What to do should bombs fall near by

Instructions issued by the Civilian Defense Committee state:

"If bombs are falling in your immediate vicinity shut off the control cock on the inlet to the gas meter.

"If after the all clear signal you do not feel confident in turning on the gas supply and relighting all appliances obtain the services of a plumber or some other qualified help to do so."

It is not necessary nor advisable to turn off the gas at the meter unless bombs are actually falling in your immediate vicinity.

"Bombs falling in immediate vicinity" means when they have fallen close enough to rattle windows violently and to cause you to feel a distinct jar. In such a case there is the possibility of local damage which might affect your gas supply.

The above sketch shows the location of the control cock of the gas meter and its "on" and "off" position. A medium sized monkey or stillson wrench that will fit this cock should be kept handy at all times. In turning the meter inlet cock off or on, do so slowly.

Gas service and appliances including their pilot lights should be operated in the normal manner until the above precautions become necessary.

The Hon. Fiorella LaGuardia, Director, Office of Civilian Defense, said...

COOPERATE...DO YOUR PART!

Whether or not we will have blackouts depends upon the decision of the Army.... During a blackout everything must be kept going—at home—at work—at places of recreation. We must adjust ourselves without interfering with industrial, commercial, or business or family life.... Make the necessary preparation so that no lights will be visible from the outside if blackouts are necessary.... It is not intended that you should remain in the dark—that's depressing—and it isn't good for the children. So keep your home cheerful—keep the lights going.

THE PHONE BOOTH MURDER

by Phoebe Atwood Taylor

Chapter 34

Another Corpse

"HORACE kept watchin' the door," Asey said, "an' after gulpin' down about half his dinner, he went out to his car an' drove away. Miss Olive an' Bram Reid finished their meals, an' then she made off in her car, toward Provincetown, an' Bram Reid made a phone call, an' then he went off in his car toward Quisset."

"I think I see what you mean," Mrs. Clutterfield said. "My, my, it's rather provoking, isn't it?"

"That sort of sums it up," Asey said.

Mrs. Clutterfield clucked her tongue, and said she personally felt this whole affair was harder, much harder, than any mystery cartoon she'd ever seen.

"I still don't see why Horace was here," she added. "It appears as if they had a date, doesn't it? What do you make of that, Mr. Mayo?"

"This is all speculation," Asey said, "but I think that Ann Joyce wanted the middle-aged part in the play Mrs. Hingham told me about. Now, Mrs. Hingham said that Horace an' Bram Reid had been arguin', presumably about the castin' of that part. If Bram Reid wanted Ann to have it, there wouldn't hardly be no argument. So you can figure that he didn't think she could do it, an' Horace thought she could see."

"Not quite," Mrs. Clutterfield said. "But do go on, Mr. Mayo. This is fascinating, listening to you! I feel like Dr. Watson!"

Asey swallowed.

"Wal-el, Doc," he said, "s'pose Horace asks Miss Olive to dinner to meet Bram Reid. I wonder, now, if that wouldn't be how it happened that Ann got Miss Olive's clothes? They ask her to dinner to meet Bram on one hand, an' then in the next breath, they beg her to lend Ann an outfit of her clothes—Oho, I'm dumb! I'm gettin' old an' feeble, Mrs. Clutterfield! I just begin to catch on! Miss Olive was goin' to help, see? Get it?"

"No, but do go on! It's frightfully exciting! How could Miss Olive help? Not that she wouldn't probably have been terribly thrilled to!"

"Sure, that's it! Bram Reid an' the Theater an' all is out of her line. She jumps the chance of helpin'! Look, Horace an' Miss Olive an' Bram Reid are to sit down an' have their dinner. Long about dessert, say, Miss Olive is to skip out to powder her nose—"

"She doesn't use any make-up, ever!"

"Wal-el, she's to skip out. An' Ann Joyce, dressed like her, is to come back. Now d'you see how that would work out? If Bram Reid didn't catch on right away—an' with all them rose-shaded lights in there, I think he'd have been fooled for a few minutes—then Ann had him, see? That explains why Horace phoned—I bet he was the one who called an' asked for mass beetle! That's why he was so nervous an' worried! Ann never showed up, an' he went off to try an' locate her!"

"Where," Mrs. Clutterfield inquired, "is Miss Olive now?"

Furious Doctor
"AT LEAST we made some progress," he said. "We know she headed toward Provincetown around seven-thirty. Mrs. Clutterfield, we'll go back to the Inn now. I still got this yen to chat with Angie Harris's aged mother, an' I want to see Bram Reid. But I bet you he don't know a thing about this plan! I bet nobody let on, when Ann didn't come. An' I bet you Horace knows lots—golly, to think I had that child by the arm an' let him go! Back to the Inn, Mrs. Clutterfield, an' you needn't spare the horses, this trip!"

Mrs. Clutterfield's face was flushed with triumph when she headed the Porter into the Whale Inn's graveled driveway.

"If Alfred," she said softly, "could have seen that! My, my!"

"Alfred," Asey returned as she drew the Porter up smoothly by the porte-cochere, "would've died of apoplexy just the other side of North Quisset. Huh! Just for fun, take Rankin for a drive tomorrow. He don't relish speed. You're good, Lady Boop! I hand it to you. Come the retribution, I'll get you a job at the Porter provid' track."

"It sounds too, too fascinating—oooh, there's Horace's car, see?" Mrs. Clutterfield pointed. "He's gone and left it out by the turntable again, and Mrs. Doane will be so provoked with him for not putting it into the garage. But Horace claims he's so tired when he gets back that simply the thought of the garage doors utterly exhausts him, and—"

She broke off as Dr. Cummings stomped down the front steps to the roadster.

"Asey Mayo, I wish to God before you go tearing off on junkies you'd have the common decency to tell people where you could be found! Didn't anyone tell you my message? Didn't anyone tell you I was coming back here with—" some highly important information for you?"

"Golly!" Asey said as he got out of the car, "now you speak of it, Jennie did murmur something about your havin' phoned."

"Indeed!" Cummings retorted. "And did Jennie happen to murmur that I was up at three this morning, and do you realize it's now practically three o'clock tomorrow morning? When people all but break their necks to try and supply you with vital information, it seems you might—"

"You mean, Doc, you found Miss Olive?" Asey demanded.

"Who said anything about findin' Miss Olive?" Cummings held up the front door for Mrs. Clutterfield and informed Asey in a whisper that the woman ought to diet. "My God, man, haven't you found her? Findin' schoolteachers isn't my department—look, what I've got to tell you is about that gun, Asey. The tool marks on the rifling of a bullet from that twenty-two we found with the girl don't match those on the bullet that killed her. Hear that?"

"Honest? What—"

"Furthermore," Cummings said, "I know it'll interest you to hear that it's Mrs. Hingham's gun."

"She bought it," Cummings said. "When I came back here, I brought the gun with me, and Hanson confronted her with it when she came in a while ago. After a stormy interview, she admitted the gun was hers, and even dug out the fancy case it came in—see it on the table? She claims the outfit, case and gun, was in her bottom bureau drawer and someone must have stolen it."

Gun For Horace
"HUH! What in time," Asey said, "would she be buyin' guns for? Did she expect that?"

"Claims she bought it for her husband to practice shooting with," Cummings said, "so if he was drafted he'd know which end of a gun you pointed, or words to that general effect. Washy Doane says that Horace has used the gun perhaps twice. Says he closes his eyes."

"Uh-huh. Washy told me about Horace's shootin', an' after havin' had a glimpse of the fellow, I understand that part," Asey said. "Horace ain't too rugged—they all gone to bed?"

"Mrs. Hingham's retired with acute migraine—genuine, I think. Hanson was feeling so thwarted by the time she came, he let loose in his best manner. You know, finger pointing and yelling 'Aha!' and generally acting like a trial lawyer in a B picture. Your charming friend Rankin has also retired, yawning, after a few gentle cracks at me—"

"Before I forget it, an' before you malign my charmin' friend Rankin any more, Doc, I must tell you that he never got any of the bills you sent him."

"I don't believe it!"

"He told me he left money to pay you with, Freddy, an' took it for granted she'd, an' how was he to know if you never billed him for his debts," Asey said.

"I tell you, that man's simply a fourflusher, that's all! And look, one of the troopers chased some, one he thought was a prowler, but it turned out to be a soldier. And—"

"Again? Is Freddy up?" Asey interrupted. "I'm beginnin' to have this suspicion that maybe perhaps this comes in her department."

"She's in the kitchen with Washy and Jennie. We were plying ourselves with coffee," Cummings said, "to keep awake. Why should Freddy?"

"You go get her," Asey said, an' while you're doin' that I'll go rouse Horace. He's the feller I'm most eager to see, right now."

"Wait!" Cummings said. "Horace isn't here, Asey. He hasn't come back yet. That sent Sister Hingham into a frenzy, when she found that out."

"But his car's here!" Mrs. Clutterfield said. "Down by the turntable. Those lovely headlights of Mr. Mayo's car showed it up the minute I turned into the driveway! Of course, he's home!"

"Maybe his car's here," Cummings said, "but he certainly isn't. We went through all that with Sister Hingham half an hour or so ago. She didn't say anything about his car. She simply said he had to be here. But he's not. And he certainly hasn't come since. I've been right here, and I know."

"Is Hanson here?" Asey asked suddenly. "No? Well, he left some men, didn't he? We'll get 'em together, Doc, an' you an' Washy an' I, we'll have a hunt for Horace! If his car's here, he must be. An' I want him!"

It was after five that morning, when the fog at last lifted, that Washy Doane found Horace, down on the sand by the bathhouse.

Like Ann Joyce, he had been shot in the back, through the heart.

There was a gun lying beside him, and Dr. Cummings gulped as he picked it up.

"Asey, look at that tag!" he said in a weak voice. "I put on that tag, myself! Asey, this is the same twenty-two that Ann Joyce wasn't shot with before!"

Rambblings and ruminations: An extremely large husband and a very small wife having a heated argument on Fifth Avenue. . . . The little woman evidently wins as he thrusts some bills into her hand and meekly follows her into a glittering shop where feminine apparel is sold. . . . A window display of that new fur which I'm told is a combination of monkey and fox. . . . Looks expensive. . . . Reminds me that at the theater lately, I've seen more ermine than in a long time past. . . . A gold-braided doorman holding a cowl in his arms, the dog's owner evidently being inside the establishment in front of which he stands. . . . A pretty brunette losing a heel as she steps from the curb. . . . With her face flaming she limps away without attempting to pick it up. . . . Job for a cobbler.

Musician's mulling about on Broadway in front of their union headquarters. . . . Not a demonstration, merely waiting to be summoned to jobs. . . . Taxicab drivers stopped by a traffic light, exchanging information on hockey teams. . . . Drunk staggering into the sidewalk exhibit of one of those sellers of toy dogs and destroying several. . . . and immediately settling all arguments by turning over a dollar bill to the owner, then teetering on his way. . . . If I were a defeated politician I'd have my advertisements taken down as soon after election as possible, though that doesn't seem to be the practice.

Bowery stores that sell second-hand clothing and shoes. . . . A bearded derelict bent under the weight of a packing case, which he is trying to carry up a steep stairway. . . . Carnival men, lean and tanned, back from their wanderings over the country. . . . Two pan-handlers stopping to talk over their day's take. . . . and finally going into a 10-cent whiskey establishment. . . . Old men looking out of the windows of upstairs lobbies of cheap hotels. . . . Ragged youngsters seeking bits of fuel. . . . Unfrosted globes lighting the windows of cheap clothing stores with a hard glare. . . . Five Points, notorious many years ago because of its gangs, now settled down into modern respectability. . . . A stand where partly smoked cigars, the ends neatly scissored, are sold. . . . A gaunt, hollow-eyed man staring into the window of a fish store at a display, the center of which is live lobsters.

The Chelsea piers, where not so long ago great liners were berthed, looking idle and deserted. . . . Where once there was a regular forest of big funnels, only an occasional smokestack. . . . and that of some small coastwise vessel. . . . The various ferry lines doing business as usual, the blunt-nosed boats bowing with the tide as they churn from their slips out into the river. . . . A police launch, unintelligible noises coming from its radio, pushing a white bellow as it hurries upstream. . . . Those little tugs, with rope fenders on their bows, still remind me of children with bad colds. . . . and I still find the odor of rotting wood and salt water alluring.

Two youngsters, in a dispute over ownership, tugging at a nondescript dog. . . . and the animal looking as if it were taking no interest in the proceedings. . . . The clang of an anvil in the shadow of Manhattan bridge, one of the few remaining blacksmith shops. . . . Wonder if small-town kids still make rings out of horseshoe nails. . . . A woman, whose voice has power and beauty, running the scales on the upper floor of a tenement. . . . While from below comes the strains of an accordion. . . . Youngsters turning over pennies to a bearded peddler of hot baked potatoes.

Lately there have been numerous reports of British sailors, here on matters vital to the defense of their country, being defrauded because they do not understand the value of our money. A recent instance was that of a young officer who came into Olney inn with 79 cents, the change a cab driver had given him for a $10 bill after hauling him less than a mile. As that was all the money he had, Clara May Downey not only provided him with a meal, but also with transportation back to where he was stationed.

U. S. Government Needs More Stenographers

Although it is estimated that there are now approximately 85,000 stenographers, typists and secretaries on the government payroll there is said to be an acute need for thousands of more stenographers.

The United States Civil Service Commission states that the examination for stenographers, recently announced, will remain open until further notice. Examination consists solely of a dictation test at 96 words a minute and transcription of notes. All persons who can qualify are being urged to apply now.

Application blanks may be obtained at any first or second class post office. Positions pay $1,440 a year to start, with good chance for advancement in the case of those who have the ability to handle positions of greater responsibility.

State Police Send Teletype Alarm Telling of Purse Snatching in Albany

Five Brooklyn youths, all under twenty years of age, were apprehended at Saugerties Sunday afternoon less than 10 minutes after a state police teletype message broadcast their description at the request of the Albany police.

Later the lads, who were wanted in Albany on a charge of snatching the purse of Miss Kathryn Hanavan, niece of an Albany detective, on South Pearl street, were found to be operating the car without a license and to Chief of Police Arthur W. Richter of Saugerties they allegedly stated the car was stolen. The five lads were first taken back to Albany to face the purse snatching charge and then will be taken to New York to answer to the stolen car charge.

The lads gave their names as Kenneth Roegle, 18, of 1242 New York avenue, who was the driver; Patrick Hastings, 18, of 245 East 25th street; Gerard DeCola, 19, of 2908 Clarendon avenue; Vito Masandrone, 17, of 1769 Nostrand avenue; and Bert Dohane, 16, of 639 Coney Island Avenue. The latter on being questioned at Albany said he was but 15 and while the four older lads were held in the Second Precinct for the night to await further questioning the younger lad was taken to the Albany Humane Society shelter.

Officer John Keeley of Saugerties received the teletype message stating that a car bearing license 2K 23-30 was wanted because of the purse snatching incident in Albany. He stationed himself at the main intersection and 10 minutes later the car came along. The lads were taken to headquarters and while being questioned as to the Albany incident it developed they had no license for the car and it is claimed they admitted the theft of the car.

When searched one of the lads, Patrick Hastings, was found to have a deputy sheriff's badge in his possession. The car also contained an electric clock which had apparently been removed from another car and a piece of hose for use in siphoning off gas.

Sunday morning Miss Hanavan told Albany police that two lads had snatched her purse, hopped in to a car and headed out South Pearl street. She took the license number of the car and notified the police who sent out the teletype alarm. At the time of the Albany incident police say the other three lads probably were hiding low in the car's back seat and could not be observed.

After the Albany police have dealt with the lads they will be returned to Brooklyn for any additional action on the stolen car charge.

Christmas Cheer at Benedictine Hospital

The Benedictine Sisters express sincere appreciation to their many friends who so generously contributed in spreading Christmas cheer throughout the hospital at Christmas.

As in former years the members of the Ladies' Auxiliary of the Benedictine Hospital devoted much time to the decorating of the reception hall and the trimming of trees in the corridors and wards of the hospital. The merchants were most generous and many friends contributed an abundance of poinsettias and other flowers that made the chapel and hospital a scene of beauty for the holidays.

Through the generosity of Raymond Gross of the Governor Clinton Hotel the patients in the hospital on Christmas Eve were entertained by William E. Thompson, who played the Hammond organ and Miss Ann Smiley, who sang Christmas carols, accompanied by Mr. Thompson. The entertainment delighted not only the patients but the entire personnel of the hospital.

Gloria Vanderbilt Weds di Cicco
Her Wedding Takes Place in Old Mission

Santa Barbara, Calif., Dec. 29 (AP)—A Vanderbilt married the son of an Italian immigrant in the 165-year-old Santa Barbara Mission yesterday, and movie stars and socialites were among the wedding guests.

Today the 17-year-old former Gloria Laura Morgan Vanderbilt—granddaughter of the Cornelius Vanderbilt who founded one of the premier family fortunes in America—was honeymooning with 32-year-old Pasquale (Pat) di Cicco. They will go to Palm Beach, Fla., and Washington, D. C., they said, and then will settle down in Beverly Hills, where di Cicco is a film actors' agent.

Di Cicco's father, arriving from Italy 55 years ago, prospered as a Long Island truck gardener. Pat went to Hollywood and, in 1932, married actress Thelma Todd. She divorced him in 1934. More than a year later she was found dead in her automobile in a garage.

The new Mrs. di Cicco will inherit $4,000,000—a trust fund from her grandfather—when she becomes 21. Meanwhile she has an allowance of $750 a month. The Roman Catholic ceremony was at high noon. Actor Bruce Cabot was best man, and Errol Flynn was an usher. The maid of honor and four bridesmaids were debutante friends of Gloria. The bride wore a gown of white slipper satin in the style of 1890, with a bustle and a 24-foot bridal veil train, and shoulder-length white gloves.

She was given in marriage by her mother, Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt. The elder Gloria wore the pale gray taffeta wedding gown in which she was married in 1923, also at the age of 17, to Reginald Vanderbilt. After the wedding, the party drove 100 miles to a reception at the Beverly Hills home of Lady Thelma Furness, twin sister of Mrs. Vanderbilt.

—Woman of the Month—

Mrs. F. D. R.—A Working Boss

By JOHN GROVER

(P) Feature Service Writer

WASHINGTON—Meet the woman you only thought you knew—Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, the President's wife, who's doing her biggest job as assistant director of the Office of Civilian Defense.

The publicized picture of Mrs. Roosevelt as almost super-humanly energetic, here today and 3,000 miles away tomorrow, is only a partial portrait. Her recent work as No. 2 "man" in OCD shows her as an organizer and executive who makes other officials goggle-eyed in admiration.

When OCD Director Fiorella LaGuardia named her in September, capital wisecracks tabbed the appointment as "window dressing" for an agency that hadn't made much dent in public apathy.

Then the Japanese supplied proof that it could happen here, and OCD overnight became one of the key agencies in Washington. At the same time it developed that "E. R."—that's the way she signs office memos—wasn't window dressing, but instead was a working boss and vitalizing force who did a whale of a job preparing OCD for the day that came December 7.

When Mrs. Roosevelt was appointed, she cancelled all speaking engagements and outside endeavor except a few mandatory and inescapable obligations. She pitched in and made OCD her No. 1 job.

Her special field is volunteer civilian participation in the war effort outside the scope of air raid protection. Boiled down, it's essentially the prevention and cure of "morale cancer."

Under her direct jurisdiction are the assistant directors for physical fitness, group activities, youth groups, veterans groups and volunteer offices.

They'll do such important chores as aiding in overcoming housing shortages, teaching dietetics and purchasing classes to provide better food for families, education for better understanding between racial groups for community and national unity, and for better community health, providing community recreation to combat war neuroses and the like.

It's her thesis that any endeavor that improves a community makes an important contribution to the war effort.

Mrs. Roosevelt used the community betterment program to "sell civilian defense to those pre-war isolationist areas where distances made people indifferent to air raid protection organization. The people there could see advantages in a community program, even if they didn't feel the immediacy of air raid threats. As a result, the organizations that came into being at Mrs. Roosevelt's urging were a nucleus for the expansion since the war.

She's also interested in seeing the "good neighbor" countries inaugurate a civilian defense program. Recently, when 67 national women's organizations sent delegates to a women's civilian defense conference, Mrs. Roosevelt arranged for leaders of Latin American women's organizations to attend.

OCD executives say Mrs. Roosevelt is invaluable because she knows more people and more things about government than anybody else in official life. She knows women's leaders from Key West to Seattle from eight years of constant traveling. When there's a tough organizational problem in this or that community, she invariably knows the local Mrs. Big who can fix it.

Same thing with official red tape. Because she's taken an interest in all the new federal departments and agencies, she does the job of getting cooperation from other governmental groups by knowing where and to whom to go to get it. All the social security and public health agencies coordinate with her OCD division.

She keeps a bevy of secretaries hustling to do her correspondence. They say she's "got a clock in her head" and times her appointments to a split second schedule. Mrs. Eleanor Morgenthau, wife of the treasury secretary, is her deputy assistant director. They share identical desks in a double office. Mrs. M. holds the fort when Mrs. R. is away. Other times, they do a double-team job of running their division, and they really run it.

Cavalry Officer Says Japs' Army Only Fourth-Rate

Tanks and Planes Give Americans, Filipinos Their Only Worry in Far East

By CLARK LEE

With the USAFFE in central Luzon—Dec. 29 (AP)—In the opinion of one hard-bitten United States cavalry colonel whose regiment has seen some sharp fighting in northern Luzon, the Japanese troops invading the Philippines are distinctly fourth-raters—and that, he says, is a charitable estimate.

"They're no damned good on the ground," declared the colonel contemptuously. "We licked the pants off them three times and were beaten only by their tanks and planes."

"When our tanks and planes go into action we'll chase them back to the sea.

"Those charlies—we call them charlies—can't shoot. Somebody gets hit about every 5,000 shots. At Tayug, Christmas Day, we fought them for seven hours and they were firing all the time, making a wonderful display, lots of noise and wasting ammunition."

"When it was all over one of my men was hit in the hand and one horse was killed."

"Tayug is about 100 miles north of Manila and 25 miles inland from the Lingayen Gulf."

"At Binalonan (west of Tayug) the previous day they surprise attacked before dawn and cut us off from our horses. Our line of withdrawal was open, but we love horses so we fought our way back to our bivouac. That scrap lasted five hours and ended when we busted their tank attack."

Two American officers, whose names were withheld, were credited with playing an important part in smashing this attack at the price of their lives.

One of the officers, a young lieutenant, took a supply of hand grenades and crawled down an exposed road toward the Japanese tanks. He had almost reached his objective when he was struck three times by machine-gun bullets. Though mortally wounded he kept on and hurled his grenades.

A short time later an American major and an unidentified driver operating a mounted 75 millimeter cannon drove off the first few Japanese tanks and then charged down the road with its gun blazing. The leading Japanese tank was smashed by a direct hit, and the attack was halted. The major was killed but the driver somehow escaped.

Filipino scouts, inspired by the action of the American officers, rode in among the Japanese tanks flinging gasoline-filled bottles at them and completed the job of breaking up the attack, thus letting the main body of cavalry make an orderly withdrawal.

Earle asserted that "German fortunes definitely are declining but the death throes may be unprecedentedly violent." He added that there is some evidence the Nazis are planning to destroy everything in any of the occupied countries which they are forced to leave—the "biggest vandalism in history."

Cornell Research On War-Time Basis

Nearly 500 Plans Revised to Conform to Needs

Ithaca, N. Y., Dec. 27—Cornell University's Agricultural Experiment Station is going on a war-time footing, and the change is being made as rapidly as possible, according to an announcement today by Carl E. Ladd, dean of the state colleges of agriculture and home economics and director of experiment stations. Similar changes are being made in connection with the research program at the New York State Agricultural Experiment Station, Geneva, New York.

Nearly 500 research projects are under way at present at the Cornell Station, many of them relating to food production, distribution, marketing, and development of the countryside's farms and homes, Dean Ladd said. The College of Agriculture alone has 469 experiment station projects and the College of Home Economics 19.

Those of greatest importance in the war emergency will receive the combined efforts of the scientists, and those of lesser importance at this time will be inactive until the war need has passed, he declared.

Dr. Ladd said, "We may need to find substitutes for commonly used spray materials, ways to use smaller quantities of fertilizer, more efficient methods for obtaining high animal production from feeds low in certain essential ingredients, and many other unusual problems. New uses may have to be found for some crops, and salvage possibilities discovered in waste products. We want to make everything count to serve its greatest use."

All research workers are called upon to make suggestions for new projects to anticipate the needs of war-time agriculture. Many farm leaders and agricultural extension workers will make suggestions.

Our entire research program, Dean Ladd said, is being reviewed and re-planned, in consultation with the faculty-elected committee on experiment stations, to serve the war-time needs of agriculture and rural life.

MacArthur Faces Big Problem of Holding His Own

Meanwhile Japanese Do All in Their Power to Make Onslaught Savage as Possible

By DEWITT MACKENZIE (Wide World War Analyst)

The position of the Philippines is increasingly grim and grave, but while we shouldn't seek refuge in dim hopes we are not yet forced to final conclusions regarding the outcome, especially since the United States navy promises "positive assistance to the defense of the Philippine Islands."

Obviously much depends on the nature of the aid and how quickly it arrives. The immediate burden rests on the broad shoulders of General MacArthur and his magnificent little army, that is, the problem of hanging on until help comes over the horizon of the vast Pacific. That burden is great, for the Japs are going all out in an effort to make a quick killing—and they are doing it without regard to the laws of humanity.

The deliberate slaughter of civilians in the defenseless and open city of Manila by Japanese bombers gives fresh point to a threat made just before Christmas by Nazi Propaganda Minister Goebbels. He declared that Germany, Italy and Japan are "going all the way" in the war and, being forced to defend their lives, "they will do it in a manner which knows no sentimental considerations."

Frightfulness Is Studied

Now the Japs have interpreted his meaning in a bloody holocaust of innocents. They have staged a studied exhibition of frightfulness after a careful survey of Manila from the air to make sure that it was indeed without defense. The purpose of this was to shatter the morale of the civilian population and thus cause a collapse of Filipino resistance. What the ordinarily softly-spoken Secretary Hull describes as the same practices of fiendishness have been employed against the Chinese, in defiance of numerous protests by our state department.

However, it isn't surprising that this should be so, and it seems to me that we should adjust our outlook to a situation which is likely to intensify. In this connection we have the sensational statement made in Istanbul by George H. Earle, American minister to Bulgaria, who was rushed out of Bulgaria because of rumors of a Nazi plot against him.

Earle asserted that "German fortunes definitely are declining but the death throes may be unprecedentedly violent." He added that there is some evidence the Nazis are planning to destroy everything in any of the occupied countries which they are forced to leave—the "biggest vandalism in history."

Barbaric Practices

So far as concerns the Japs, there have been constant reports of barbaric practices in China. For example, quite apart from charges of massacres and use of poison gas—which might conceivably be Chinese propaganda—on October 13 last we had a dreadful story from members of American missionary families at Changsha regarding the Japanese occupation of that city from September 27 to 30.

These Americans stated that the invaders carried out executions, looted and burned. They said the Tale-in-China Hospital treated Chinese with deep gashes in their necks, inflicted by Japs trying to behead them with long swords.

Well, that's the sort of people we are up against and we might as well steel ourselves for nasty developments. After all, we mustn't overlook that the Japanese have partaken only slightly of western civilization. Their impulses are primitive—those of a thousand years ago.

They are Pagans, and it's well not to forget that many of the fanatical Nazis also have embraced Paganism. In other words, we are at grips with forces from out of the dark past—an almost unbelievable adventure in the world of centuries ago.

Thus we must prepare ourselves for the shock of further atrocities of all sorts.

Warden's Duties Explained

There has been so much speculation as to exactly what an air warden and his assistants were and what their duties consisted of that Captain L. S. Miller of the local defense council today issued the following statement:

"We've been hearing about air raid wardens, sector wardens and post wardens. It's all so very confusing. What do these terms mean and what are the duties and responsibilities of each? These or similar questions have been asked many times recently, so we'll attempt to clarify the situation.

"We'll take the most important man first. He is the post warden, a responsible citizen in whose care is the well being of a group of approximately 100 persons who live in a designated area. He lives in your neighborhood and is, or will be, well known to you. He has volunteered his services, and may be called upon to give much of his time to the public welfare. In a blackout, either practice or real, he is on the street asking cooperation of the homes where the alarm has not been heard. He will be courteous and helpful to you, an expects you to comply quickly with his request to cover up, or put out, lights which are visible from the outside.

"In an air raid the real responsibility of the post warden appears. He is on the alert for any kind of bombs which may fall in his area, and fires resulting therefrom. He knows where and how to quickly get any assistance which he needs, whether it be first aid, transportation of injured, evacuation of the sick or helpless, demolition squads or any other special assistance. Your post warden knows his responsibility and is preparing himself to meet it. Help him to better protect you by quickly and cheerfully responding to any request which he may make. You may recognize your post warden by his identifying band which he wears, and the identification card which he carries—both of which may not be in use at the time of the first blackout, though orders have been placed for them.

The air raid warden and sector wardens are executive officers charged with the responsibility of seeing that each and every section of the city is properly covered by post wardens.

"Each of the 13 wards of our city has a senior officer known as the air raid warden who is in charge of the sector wardens. A sector warden is responsible for what is known as a sector which comprises approximately 500 persons, and has under his command the necessary post wardens as outlined in the earlier paragraph of this article.

"Additional post wardens are appointed for each school, factory, theatre, church or other public building where more than 100 people are housed or may gather. "Extra wardens are appointed for each ward, sector and post to allow for the necessary relief wardens in case 24 hour duty ever becomes necessary.

"Your fellow citizens are doing their duty by volunteering for your defense. You will do your patriotic duty by your fullest cooperation with them."

It is also requested that the use of the telephone be limited during this short period in order that these facilities may be available for official communication and thus expedite this test.

Consideration for, and cooperation with, the sector wardens and post wardens, who may be identified by a white marker on the arm, is asked with the thought in mind that everyone is a part of the civilian defense.

The ward is divided into five sectors, each under the jurisdiction of a sector warden, each sector is again divided into posts, each division being under the jurisdiction of a post warden.

Former Marines May Re-Enlist

Both Regular and Reserve Are Needed in Service

Former United States Marines, either regular or reserve, who re-enlist in the Marine Corps will be re-appointed to the rank they held at the time of their last discharge, provided they have not been separated from the service for more than five years, it was announced today by Colonel Thomas S. Clarke, officer in charge of the eastern recruiting division of the Marine Corps.

"If the rank held at time of discharge was by virtue of a special warrant for mess, baker, fire control, communications, aviation, quartermaster or paymaster duty, reappointment will be made by similar warrant," Colonel Clarke said. However, if such warrant was held for other duty than those named, the man may be re-appointed by special authority of the major general commandant.

All ex-Marines who are anxious to get back into the service with their previous rank, are urged to call at the U. S. Marine Recruiting Station, Room 214, Post Office Building, Poughkeepsie.

Two years could be added to the life of the average man and woman by an annual physical examination and remedy of defects, according to Dr. Halbert Dunn, chief statistician of vital statistics for the Census Bureau. The average life expectancy at birth is now 60.6 years for men and 64.5 years for women.

From Palace to Machine Shop London (P)—"Sally" leaves a palace every morning to go to her job in a munitions factory. She is Lady Sarah Spencer-Churchill, eldest daughter of the Duke and Duchess of Marlborough and a relative of Prime Minister Churchill. It was recently announced that she was one of the hundreds of girls employed in a Morris Motor Factory. The tall, 20-year-old girl, who made her debut at a ball for 600 guests in 1939, is known at the factory as "Miss Churchill" and is called "Sally" by the girls at neighboring benches. She had worked at a government restaurant in Woodstock peeling potatoes and washing dishes, but she volunteered for more active war work. Her home is Blenheim Palace, named for the great battlefield of her ancestor, the first Duke of Marlborough. She takes lunch in the factory canteen.

FOOD TIPS

FROM THE COOKBOOKLETS

NEW COOKBOOKLET, "250 FISH AND SEA FOOD RECIPES" NOW AVAILABLE

A whole fish, baked and stuffed, makes a beautiful presentation for dinner — Marinated cucumbers in a nest of parsley add to the beauty and taste. This is from the new Cookbooklet on Fish and Sea Food.

Do you serve fish as often as you should? Fish and sea foods have always been highly prized for their content of valuable mineral salts, especially iodine. Iodine is an absolute essential for the maintenance of good health and one in which other foods are apt to be deficient. Not only are sea foods valuable from a health standpoint, but they are a delicacy with a fascinating appetite appeal.

"250 Fish and Sea Food Recipes," the ninth booklet in the Kingston Daily Freeman's series of 20 Cookbooklets, presents 250 splendid reasons why these economical, highly nutritious foods will take a more important place in your meal planning.

The traditional ways of preparing fish and sea food are as much in favor as ever. We still like them baked, broiled, boiled and fried, but we have also learned to enjoy crisp salads, molded salads, fish souffles, rolls and rings. The Fish Book presents an exciting variety of ways to serve fish and sea food for quick meals, elaborate dinners, Sunday night suppers, luncheons and entrees to tempt the appetite. The booklet will show you how to vary your fish meals with baked fish, planked fish, stewed, steamed and boiled fish, fish and sea food grills, fish balls, fritters and puffs, fish rolls, chowders, loaves, salads and rarebits; sea food cocktails, casseroles, cutlets, a la Newburg, thermidor, souffles, plus unusual sauce, garnish and stuffing suggestions.

Priorities of Beauty

Makeup for Morale

By BETTY CLARKE
AP Feature Service Writer

People are playing with toothpicks and parchment paper these days lest permanents become a thing of the past tomorrow. And New England seaweed is being tested for soap making.

Makeup for morale is not only something to think about; it's being built up by substitute basic products so that priorities will not affect pretty faces.

The big beauty headache has packages, to simplify and standardize containers.

No more brass for beauty containers after Jan. 1 means that synthetic substances must be used until a new substitute for brass is ready (and it's supposed to be on its way). Pottery such as Cleopatra used for her beauty-aids may be in again for your time.

Tale for your powder will come from California now instead of from Italy, India and Manchuria. There'll be beeswax from South

Four Autos Involved In Route 32 Accident

Miss Teresa Constantino of Highland, RD. was treated at the Benedictine Hospital last night for minor injuries suffered in an automobile accident on Route 32, about half a mile south of the Yunker gas station at Maple Hill.

Miss Constantino was riding in a car being driven by W. H. Borland of Highland, RD. when the car skidded on the roadway made slippery by the light snow and went off the shoulder of the road. As the Borland car came back on the roadway there was a collision with a car driven by Francis Bots of 147 Prospect avenue, Middletown, who was unable to avoid the Borland car.

While both cars were blocking the highway Walter Capuzzo of Ashokan came along and stopped his car until the obstruction was cleared away. Shortly afterward Robert Schwarz of Tillson, on his way to Kingston, where he is employed in Schwenk's bakery, failed to see the Capuzzo car in time and crashed into its rear end. The accident was reported to the sheriff's office at 9:25 o'clock and Deputies Gillmore and Young made an investigation.

Christmas Program Given At West Shokan Church

The annual Christmas program of the West Shokan Baptist Sunday School was presented to a full congregation Sunday evening, December 21. The church, appropriately decorated with hemlock boughs, laurel, and other greens with a beautiful tree reaching to the ceiling, gayly trimmed and lighted, radiated the Christmas spirit. The following program was under the direction of Mrs. Bertha M. Shimer, superintendent of the Sunday School with music supervised by Thomas Crosby, Sr., of Kingston. At the close of the service, Santa appeared and distributed a bountiful supply of gifts, candy, popcorn and oranges to the children and members of the Sunday School.

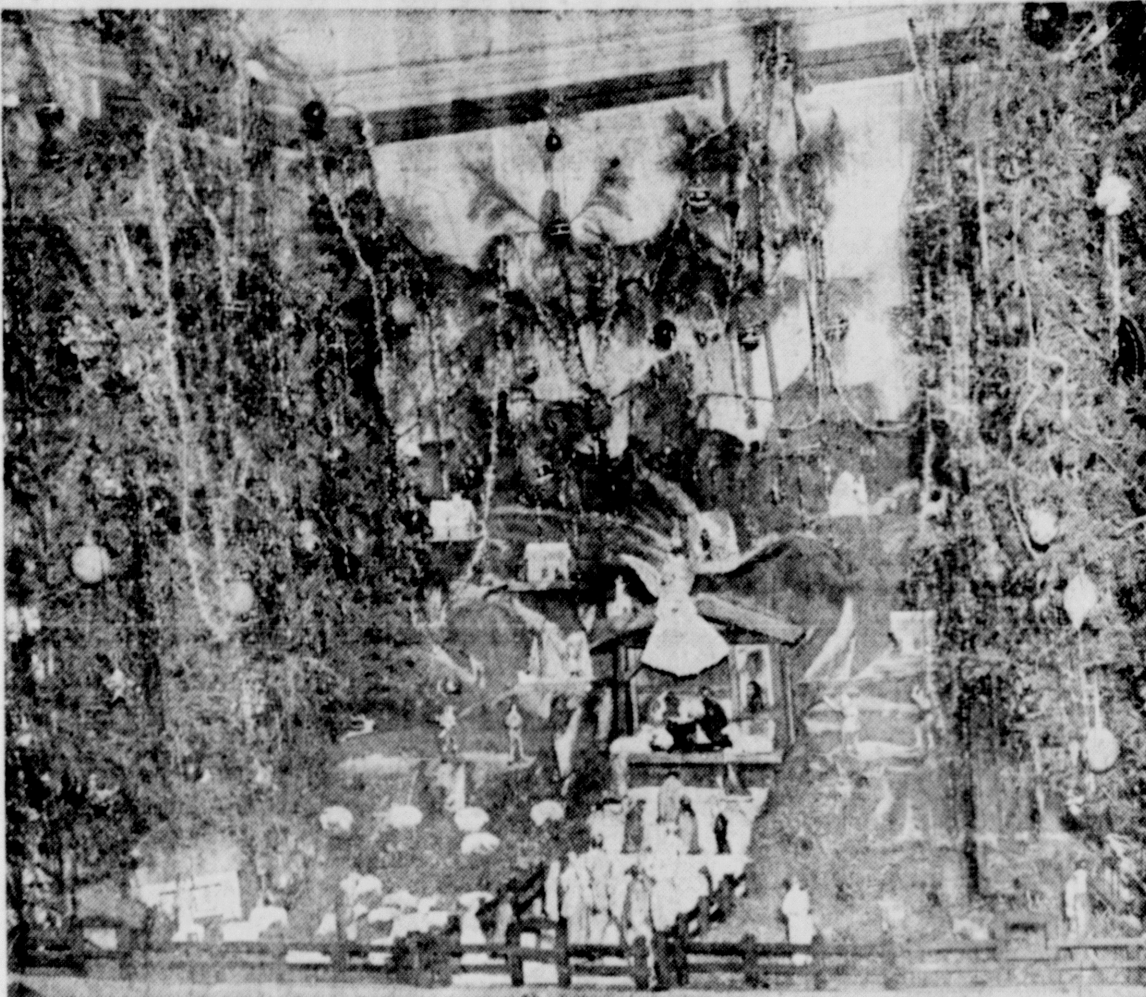

Those taking part were: The Rev. John A. Wright, Anita Hesley, Norma Burgher, Leslie Nichols, Margaret Purcell, Robert Whispell, Betty Burgher Vincent Palen, Howard Purcell, Helen Tweedy, Ruth Purcell Gertrude Palen, Thomas Crosby, Jr., Stella Barley, Norma Burgher, Hattie Barley, Ronald Hasley and William Crosby.

Resigns as Secretary
Ward B. Tongue, who has been serving as secretary of the local defense council since it was organized, has resigned and Mayor C. J. Heiselman has appointed Harry Seitz of West Chestnut street to succeed Mr. Tongue as secretary. Mr. Seitz on January 1 will also assume his new duties as deputy city clerk. Mr. Tongue was recently appointed secretary of the Municipal Civil Service Board to fill the vacancy caused by the resignation of Joseph Craig.

Clubs to Meet
Wednesday noon the Kingston Kiwanis Club will be host to members of Rotary and Lions Clubs of this city at the Governor Clinton Hotel in a joint meeting. Harold B. Elde, traveler and adventurer, will speak on "Adventure Around the Top of the Globe." Mr. Elde, starting out at the age of 15, spent some 20 years in Norway, Greenland and Alaska living among the native inhabitants of those areas. His observations on northern life is most interesting.

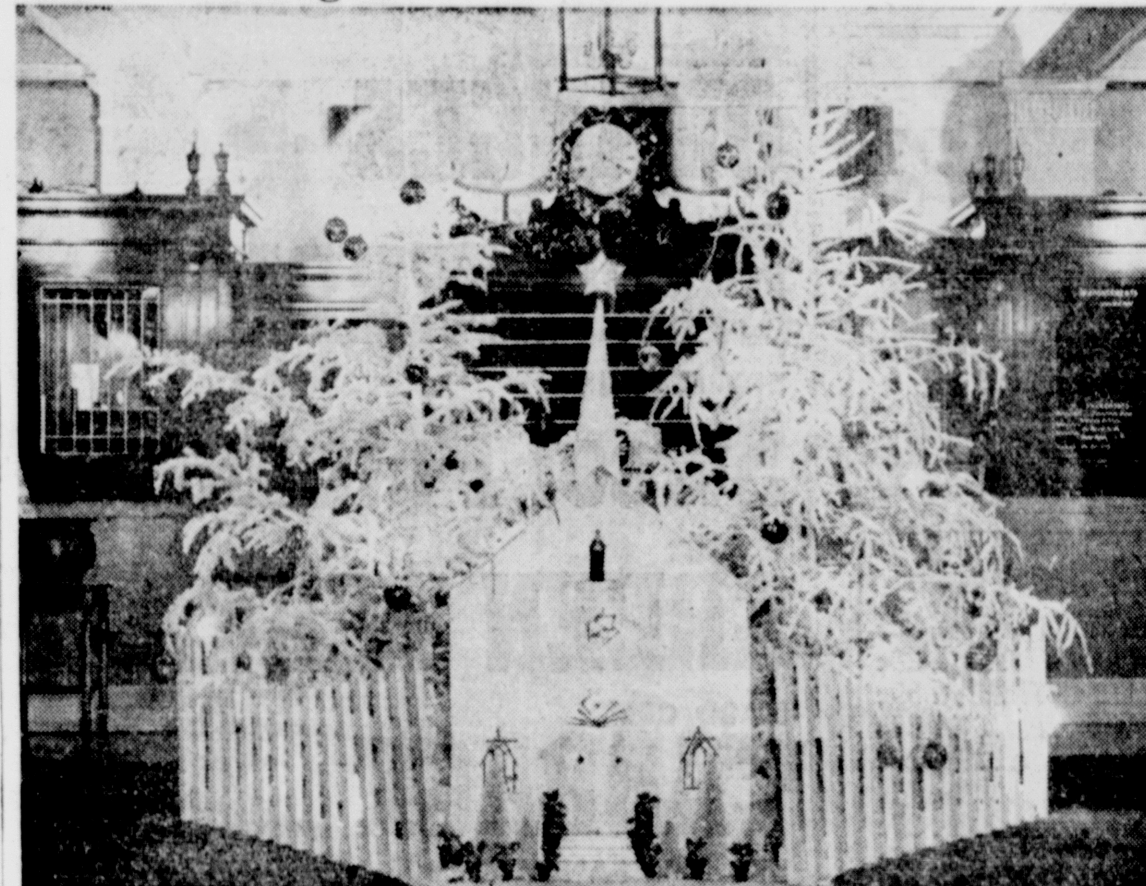

New Guinea and Borneo, Netherlands Indies, are two of the largest islands in the world, the Department of Commerce says.

Builds Colorful Manger Scene

The above Christmas Crib was built by Michael Amarello of 13 Prince street. All the images are facing the manger, on the right side are cows and horses and the left are sheep. There are cabins on the mountain and people represented as though walking down the mountain to see the babe in the manger.

Among Local Christmas Scenes

Among effective Christmas scenes in the city is that shown above in the lobby of the Governor Clinton Hotel.

Births Recorded

The following births have been reported to the Board of Health:

Mr. and Mrs. James DeCicco of 169 Murray street, a daughter, Kathleen Ann, in Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Harry J. Craven of 161 Prospect street, a son, Ronald Allerton, in Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Horace Ellsworth of Box 212, Kingston, a son, Clifford Earl, in Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward P. Ploss of Ashokan, a daughter, Evelyn Mae, in Kingston Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Elton B. Ellisworth of 34 Murray street, a son, Elton Frank, in Kingston Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Brewster of Chichester, a son, Seymour Clarence, in Benedictine Hospital.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Durham of 39 East Strand, a daughter, Mary Theresa, in Benedictine Hospital.

forces. The armed vessels were sunk.

"An offensive patrol in conjunction with this operation was carried out by Blenheim aircraft of the bomber command. They encountered and attacked a convoy of enemy merchant ships. Many bombs fell among them and one ship was sunk."

While the operations were proceeding at Vaagso, British bombers were attacking Herdla, the nearest enemy airbase 100 miles down the coast. Wooden runways of the airbase were hit from a height of 250 feet and a Messerschmitt fighter which was taxiing in at the time was destroyed.

Eight Bombers Lost

The communiqué said eight bombers were lost in the operations and three fighters were missing after day-long fighting which came after the sudden raid. British ships suffered only minor damage from the German air attacks afterwards and all returned fit for immediate service, it was said. British fighters prevented any successful attacks on the ships.

Nine "Quislings" were included among the prisoners brought back. The soldiers landed at 8:31 a. m., did their work "too quickly" as an officer put it and were able to leave at 2:45 p. m. instead of 3 p. m. as scheduled.

The officer said the three chief captives were the Nazi officer commanding the garrison, the German naval captain of the port and the "chief Quisling," the 40-year-old chairman of the local cannery factory supplying food for Nazi troops in Russia.

Meanwhile, the R.A.F. sent its bombers over Germany proper. Far-ranging planes were said authoritatively to have hit targets in northwest Germany in overnight raids.

Aided by good weather, the bombers dropped heavy loads of explosives on the German ports of Wilhelmshaven and Emden and Rhlmeind industrial districts, authoritative sources said.

The air ministry news service said that American-built Havocs also had raided airbases in German-occupied territory and railway yards at Bethune, France.

"Considerable activity was interrupted at the Bethune marshalling yards when a Havoc unloaded its bombs and left two fires burning," the news service declared.

(The Germans declared the British landing party was driven back to its ships in short and violent engagements Saturday and added that one destroyer of the fleeing British formation was sunk.)

(The Germans also said a cruiser and another destroyer were damaged by Nazi aircraft and 10 British bombers were shot down. (Berlin acknowledged that the German patrol boat Foehn sank under the fire of the cruiser and several destroyers.)

Tire Rationing Is Expected to Cut Use of Gasoline

the petroleum coordinator ordered a ration of gasoline for service stations in seven eastern states and the District of Columbia.

These restrictions were lifted when the British reported their oil supply situation had been relieved and agreed to return some of the tankers.

As to the east coast supply situation, the petroleum coordination office said stocks on December 20 amounted to 64,564,000 barrels (including crude oil, gasoline, light heating oil and heavy fuel oil), or 6,936,000 barrels above the same date last year.

Mayor Heiselman said today that he would request the Common Council to grant the board the use of the room on the third floor of the city hall formerly used by the U. S. Veterans Bureau, which is now located in the county building on Main street.

Oven-Baked Beans Join Up With Meats

To Please the Hungry Men and Help the Budget—Oven-baked Beans Join Up with Dried Beef. This Main Dish Makes a Particularly Attractive Menu Served with Peanut Butter Corn Sticks and Relishes of Fresh Cucumber Pickle and Grape Jelly.

By CAROL BRUECK

AN EVER-PRESENT help in keeping the budget under control while prices rise are oven-baked beans. A protein food rich in iron and other minerals—beans may frequently take the place of the more expensive meat in your meal.

Then, too, baked beans combine well with meats and thus make them go farther. Dried beef is one of the many meats with which oven-baked beans will make a fine showing. The recipe for this combination is given below.

When one considers besides that there are four different kinds of the oven-baked beans with which to form a great variety of quick main dishes—one realizes that they are a "must" for the pantry shelf. The oven-baked beans in molasses sauce with pork (Boston style) are made from a prized old New England recipe—and so they are always welcomed especially by people from that part of the country. Mid-westerners favor the two kinds of oven-baked beans in tomato sauce—one with pork and one without (vegetarian style)—both are delicious with all kinds of meats. The oven-baked red kidney beans are prepared with a delicate sweet sauce to please the canny South-westerner as well as form a good basis for delicious main dish bean salads.

Oven-Baked Beans With Sautéed Dried Beef: Sauté the contents of 1 small jar (5-oz.) dried beef in 2 tbs. butter. Then move to one side and heat 1 medium (18-oz.) can oven-baked beans, Boston style, in the same pan. When heated, turn the beans out on a warmed platter and top with the dried beef. Serves 4.

Remember that youngsters—and many oldsters—like ginger cookies and animals in their Christmas stockings. You can keep the cookies soft by putting half an orange or lemon in the jar. Change fruit every five days.

Peppermint-flavored whipped cream is an interesting topper for baked or steamed pudding. Mix ¼ cup crushed peppermint stick candy into cup of whipped cream, add 3 tablespoons confectioner's sugar, mix well and chill.

Financial and Commercial

New York, Dec. 29 (AP)—Heavy tax selling was offset by equally strong replacement demand in today's stock market and the result was a high degree of irregularity throughout the fast session.

While favorites pushed up as much as 2 points or so, numerous issues made little or no headway and losers were plentiful near the final hour. Turnover was at the rate of about 2,700,000 shares, largest since May a year ago.

Wall Street was unable to work up much cheer over the war news, including the desperate Philippines defense against the Japanese invasion. Business developments were without a great amount of stimulation. Early bidding was attributed mainly to the belief the market was pretty generally "sold out" and was due for at least a technical come-back. Bonds and commodities leaned to the rising tide.

Among stocks giving a good account of themselves were American Telephone, Allied Chemical, Eastman Kodak, U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, United Aircraft, Sears Roebuck, Kennecott and N. Y. Central.

The bounding tobacco issues of Saturday gave up part of their advance. Among these were the "B" shares of American, Reynolds and Liggett & Myers. Standard Oil (N. J.) was a soft spot, along with American Can and U. S. Rubber. Backward were General Motors, International Nickel, Texas Co. and Chesapeake & Ohio.

While hanging thus, the bees produce wax. It comes from their abdomens, and they scrape it up with their legs. After it is chewed, it is ready for use in making combs. In building a comb, great numbers of bees take part. Some put the wax in place; others shape it into cells. The combs are begun from the roof of the hive, and more and more cells are added beneath. Each cell meant for a young worker bee or for a drone is made with six sides. This form gives the most cells possible within a given space of comb.

When the wax is new it is white, but soon it begins to take on a shade of yellowish brown. Very old combs become almost black.

Having eaten their fill of honey, many bees hang from the roof of the hive, forming a string. The forelegs of one bee are clasped about the hind legs of the one above. Another string starts from a different point on the ceiling, and the lowermost bee clings to the lowermost member of the other string. In that position they remain, usually for a day and night.

William Merritt Dies at Hospital Of Heart Ailment

William G. Merritt of 27 Orchard street, died Sunday afternoon at the Kingston Hospital of a heart ailment from which he had suffered for four months. Within a few minutes of his death he had been joking with some of the staff.

Mr. Merritt has been associated with the Universal Road Machinery Company of Kingston for about 18 years and was widely known throughout the Hudson River Valley. His jovial disposition, keen wit, unfailing sense of humor and unusually marked ability as a story-teller caused him to be much sought after. He had innumerable friends in all walks of life.

Mr. Merritt was a son of the late Rev. William B. Merritt and Mary Pitkin Pease Merritt, his wife, and was born January 14, 1872, in the parsonage of the Flatbush Reformed Church. As a boy he attended School No. 8 and Kingston Academy. He was a member of the old Company M when President McKinley issued a call for volunteers in the war with Spain, he volunteered and served in the First New York Volunteer Infantry. He saw service in Honolulu and elsewhere in the Hawaiian Islands, and was mustered out of service with this regiment in February, 1899. Afterward he was one of the organizers of Colonial Camp, No. 75, United Spanish War Veterans, in which he held various offices and became a past commander. He was patriotic instructor at the time of his death. He was actively interested in the success of the state convention of the veterans scheduled to be held in Kingston next July.

For many years he was an active member of Kingston Council, No. 356, Order of United Commercial Travelers. He had held all the chairs in the local council, and served one term as state counselor. He was one of the organizers and later president of the Mt. Marion Club of the First Reformed Church of this city. In his earlier years he was active in church work and served in the old Dutch Church as deacon.

Mr. Merritt for several years was night editor of the Kingston Leader. At that time he helped to organize the parades which escorted the draftees in the first World War when they entrained for camp. He also organized the movement for Kingston's first community Christmas tree.

Mr. Merritt is survived by his widow, Henrietta Wolven Bonesteel, and one brother, Edward L. Merritt of this city. Funeral services will be held from the chapel of A. Carr & Son on Tuesday afternoon, December 30, at 2 o'clock, the Rev. Arthur E. Oude-molen, officiating. Burial will be in the Merritt family plot in Wiltwyck cemetery.

Evening Verse—

(For Your Scrapbook)
By DANIEL J. O'CONNOR

Happy New Year!

I know that you've heard it
In dozens of ways
And tho' I might word it
By finding a phrase
With syllables blending
In letters of gold
I still would be sending
The message of old.

So with your permission
I'd just like to say
A short repetition
May serve to convey
An old-fashioned greeting
Without any frills
That favors repeating
Tho' old as the hills.

"May Heaven befriend you
And health be your spear
As blessings attend you
To brighten the year."

U.S. Sinks Two Japanese Ships

The Japanese, announcing a direct hit on a large Japanese transport and the probable destruction of 12 Japanese fighter planes at Miri, where the Japanese also have invaded the realm of the White Rajah of Sarawak.

That the Dutch communiqué omitted mention of the air-borne Japanese invasion of Sumatra suggested that the invaders either had been repelled or had failed, at least, to win a secure foothold.

The Japanese themselves admitted that the invasion of Borneo had cost them a destroyer and a minesweeper, but they claimed to have destroyed 10 big warplanes and two submarines.

Defenseless Manila, bombed at will for two successive days after it had been proclaimed an open city, apparently had been spared the further devastation today although Japanese planes pounded the island fortress of Corregidor, at the entrance to Manila Bay outside the city.

The city's 825,000 inhabitants had another scare, however. In southern Luzon, the Japanese continued landing reinforcements today and it appeared that the most serious threat to Manila might be developing from that direction.

There was a Sunday Japanese air raid against Sorong on the north coast of Dutch New Guinea. Dutch authorities warned their people against running after leaflets dropped from Japanese planes. They said 128 persons were killed in Dutch West Borneo December 19 when Japanese pilots tricked and machine-gunned them this way.

Maurice U. Tome Dies; Was Basketball Player

Maurice U. Tome, 51, who jumped center for the famous basketball team organized in Kingston in the days when the late Frank "Pop" Morgenweck was making basketball history for this city, died on Tuesday evening, December 23, in St. Francis Hospital, in Trenton, N. J. Funeral services were held last Friday in Trenton.

Mr. Tome is survived by his widow, the former Miss Mary Diamond, of this city, and four sons, Jack, Maurice, Donald and William.

Better known to basketball fans as "Morrie" Tome, the lanky basketball star was one of the three rookies brought here by Morgenweck in the days of the Hudson River League in 1910-11 when Morgenweck took over the management of the local basketball team from the late Sergeant Edward Fitzgerald of old Company M.

The other two rookies brought by Morgenweck that season were Sammy Curlett and Harry Frankle, who also made good with the Kingstons.

Plans Progressing For Shriners Ball

Ticket Sale Is Reported Encouraging to Date

The members of the Kingston Shriners' Association are working hard on their plans to make their annual entertainment and ball to be held in the municipal auditorium on Friday evening, January 9, an outstanding success.

The ticket committee under the chairmanship of Ralph Cohen reports a most encouraging sale of patron tickets. Returns are coming in every day and they urge that all who have not already sent in their check to do so as soon as possible in order to facilitate the publishing of their patron list.

Anyone desiring to purchase a patron ticket who has not already been solicited can obtain same by calling at or writing the Kingston Shriners' Association, 48 Main street.

As in all previous years the entire proceeds from this affair will be turned over to the Industrial Home.

Several Are Arrested For Minor Offenses

Edward Forbes of Pine Hill, who has appeared in police court several times, was sentenced today to 30 days in the county jail when he pleaded guilty to public intoxication when arraigned before Judge Matthew V. Cahill in police court. Forbes was arrested Saturday afternoon on Kierstead avenue.

Hyman Shack of 80 West O'Reilly street, arrested on a charge of blocking the driveway of the Central Hudson Gas & Electric Corp., on Cedar street, forfeited $2 bail by not appearing in court today.

Joseph A. Cunningham of 156 Pine street, charged with public intoxication on Clinton avenue, was given a suspended sentence.

Walter Lyons of 2 Mary's avenue, charged with not having an operator's or chauffeur's license, furnished bail for his appearance later in court.

Masons Visit Home

Christmas morning a group of members of Rondout Lodge, No. 343, F. & A. M., paid a visit to the Industrial Home where the Masons played Santa Claus by presenting a gift to each of the 42 children. The children in return presented a Christmas pageant that reflected great credit not only upon those taking part, but those who trained the children. The gifts were distributed to the children by P. H. Carey, Abram Rosenthal and Maynard Mizel. A gift of money was made to the Industrial Home by Donald Leith representing Rondout Commandery.

Waltz Ball Is Successful Event

Saturday evening, the Woodstock Town Hall was the scene of a gala holiday dance as the Waltz Ball for the benefit of the Red Cross was held. The hall was decorated in keeping with the Christmas season and with flags of several nations. The committee reported the affair as a huge success, having cleared at least $500.

The hit of the evening was the popular musical trio of Ben Webster, Konrad Cramer and Ned Thatcher. Mr. Thatcher was particularly amusing with his part in playing the "bones."

For the waltzes, Vladimir Padwa was at the piano and included in the orchestra were Pierre Henrotte, Milton Woven and Dr. Hans Cohn. In addition to the opportunity to dance the old-fashioned Viennese waltzes, modern and square dancing were enjoyed to the music of Fred Allen and his band.

Posters for the occasion made by several of the most noted Woodstock artists were auctioned off by Robert Browning and augmented the fund by $107. Ben Webster also auctioned off a large cake decorated with a red cross. Another highlight of the evening was the singing of the Star Spangled Banner, led by Robert Carlson of Fort Devens, Mass., who is home on furlough.

The bride is a graduate of New Paltz Normal High School and attended Mount Sinai Hospital at New York city's Medical Center. Dr. Tuhy was graduated from the University of Portland and the University of Oregon. Medical School, where he was a member of Nu Sigma Nu fraternity. He interned at Kings County Hospital in Brooklyn. Dr. Tuhy is now a second-year resident physician at the University Tuberculosis Hospital in Portland, where they will reside.

How to Reply to Invitation Written on Visiting Cards

A close competitor for the most popular question at this holiday season (judged by the number of letters on the subject) is one asking how to reply to invitations to teas and cocktail parties that are written on visiting cards.

The rule observed by most people is this. It is not necessary to answer invitations to teas and cocktail parties unless the invitation asks for an answer by adding "R.s.v.p." or "Please Reply" or else by asking, "Will you come...?" Nevertheless it is always polite to answer—particularly if the party is to be a small one and if you can not go. Although it is still correct to send third person notes, it is entirely permissible today to answer all invitations of this type on your cards. "Accept with pleasure, Wed. at 4" or "So sorry can't accept for 20th."

Clothes at Morning Wedding

Dear Mrs. Post: Please help us with our hats and the length of our dresses. The wedding is at home, at eleven in the morning, and the bride is wearing white and a veil. The mothers would like to know whether they should wear street length dresses or long ones, and are they supposed to wear hats? They feel that the hats at a house wedding may look unnecessarily stiff for the simplicity of this town.

Answer: The mothers should wear hats, because the marriage service is a religious ceremony and also because hats belong with day dresses. In a medium-sized and probably crowded house, it would be very unimportant whether their dresses were long for short or even of the same length since few people could see the length of their skirts. But if they are to stand together in a room that is very large so that their skirts are plainly seen, then I think the shorter skirts are more graceful, and the length of their dresses should be the same.

Flowers to Guest of Honor

Dear Mrs. Post: Is it necessary that a hostess give a corsage to her guest of honor?

Answer: Socially and informally, no. On a formal occasion when many guests are invited to meet a stranger or a bride, a corsage is rather expected. Professionally at a lunch or dinner given before the performance of a professional musical, or actress, or lecturer, a corsage is rarely, if ever, omitted.

Save and Save

By LUCRECE HUDGINS

"Grow vegetables and serve your time" is the advice of the Office of Civilian Defense consumer experts to every American housewife.

And if you don't have a plot of land to plant, then accomplish the same end by not wasting any food stuff you buy at the market. Ten million people in England are relying upon us to supply their food requirements. Only by the wise use of our supplies can we send them the 3 million cans of vegetables, 250,000 tons of fruit, the 500 million dozen eggs, and the 18 million pounds of poultry, which we have agreed to ship to England.

Not only must the housewife guard against wasting food, she must see that there is no waste in anything.

Don't throw away scrap material. Don't use the telephone unnecessarily. Don't use lights that aren't needed. Don't throw away old papers.

And, above all, don't squander time and energy listening to and spreading unfounded rumors from the warfront.

Learn to Dance, Advice For Holding Husbands

If you want to hold your husband, learn to dance. Swing your mop to rumba rhythm and flip the morning flapjacks to a tango beat. Or, if you prefer it, do an almand-left around the dinner table. The point is that you must lumber up your ankles and shake the starch out of your spine. It will promote delight in your domestic regime. It will make you a better wife.

This is what Elsie MacDonald of Philadelphia has to say as the result of years of teaching the young, old and in-betweeners to dance. Elsie is a sister of Jeannette MacDonald, the cinema singing star.

"If a young man asked me what kind of a bride to choose, I'd tell him to pick a girl who likes to dance," says Elsie. "I don't care whether she prefers jitterbugging, ballet dancing or plain old-fashioned American folk dancing, she'll make him a better wife than the girl who hasn't music in her heart and rhythm in her ankles."

If you're past the age of rug-cutting you still can be as modern as day after tomorrow in the more restrained figures of the Money Musk. Miss MacDonald declares revival all over America of dances of grandmother's day is an expression of America's will for peace.

Dancing Learned In Home Lessons

Bumping Can Be Avoided

Easy, now! If you often crash into people on the dance floor, you're probably not sure of your dance posture or your steps.

You can easily learn the steps from diagrams. As for posture and smooth leading, why not take a few of the tips other men follow? For instance—

In holding your partner, be as comfortable as possible; keep her right arm no higher than her shoulder and clasp her a little above the waist. She'll follow better, make it easier for you.

Get your body under control as you dance. See that your upper body is directly over your hips—your weight over the balls of your feet. Then you can stop on a dime!

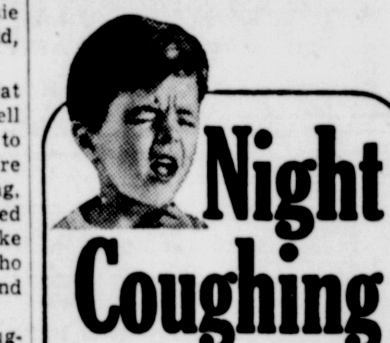

But, most important of all, be in a relaxed state of mind—possible only if you know the steps by heart!

You can learn any popular dance in one evening. Our 32-page booklet has diagrams and clear instructions for Conga, rumba, tango, fox-trot, Westchester, waltz, Samba, Lindy, Peabody and shag. Includes basic steps and variations. Gives tips on leading, following.

Wallace Andrews Dies in Florida

Retired District School Superintendent Was 59 Years of Age

Wallace J. Andrews, for 35 years superintendent of the Fourth Supervisory District of the Ulster county school system, died Friday morning at Jacksonville, Fla., while en route to New York for medical treatment. Mr. Andrews, 59 years old, retired from the superintendency last August because of ill health and had gone to Florida to spend the winter at Miami. For the past seven or eight years he had been in ill health. He suffered a relapse and Friday while en route to New York by train he was taken seriously ill and left the train at Jacksonville where he entered a hospital.

A native of Oliveira where he had maintained a residence during his lifetime, Mr. Andrews attended the local schools and also New Paltz Normal School and later obtained his master's degree from Albany State Teachers' College.

At an early age he taught school and after teaching school at Germantown, Columbia county, he became principal of a school at Summit, N. J., out left that position to become District Superintendent of the Fourth Supervisory District which includes the towns of Hardenbergh, Olive, Shandaken and Woodstock. This position he took over when but 24 years of age and he continued to serve in that capacity until last August when he retired. Mr. Andrews was re-elected on six occasions to the position and had completed 35 years of service at the time of his retirement.

Last June when he announced that he would retire in August when his term expired, he was the guest of honor at a dinner at Woodstock Inn which was attended by the teachers of his district. At that time Prof. James T. Shotwell of Columbia University, a resident of Woodstock, was the guest speaker and he termed Mr. Andrews one of the "leaders in educational work in this part of the United States." At the dinner Mr. Andrews was presented with a watch by the teachers as a token of the esteem in which he was held and a set of resolutions were adopted expressing the gratitude for all he had done for the teaching staff of his district and for his friendliness and help.

Mr. Andrews was prominently identified with school work in this state and served on the legislative and executive committees of the State School Superintendent's Association and was also at one time president of the Eastern Association of District School Superintendents which comprises 18 counties of this area.

Mr. Andrews was a member of the Oliveira Methodist Church and was active in various religious circles. He was a member of Kingston Lodge, No. 10, F. & A. M., of this city.

Beside his wife, Mrs. Edna W. Andrews, one brother Charles J. Andrews a former supervisor of the town of Shandaken, and a sister, Mrs. Josephine Morrison of Westkill, N. Y., survives. A second brother, Fred L. Andrews, for 30 years a forest ranger, died this fall.

Chameleon Is Amazing; 'Quick-Change Artist'

Certain animals change their coats as the seasons go by. One of these is the Arctic fox. In summer it has brownish or blue-gray hair, but in winter its coat becomes white, to match the snow.

Perhaps the most amazing of all animals which change their coats is the chameleon. It is what we may call the "quick-change artist" of the animal world.

The name "chameleon" is pronounced "kush-MEE-lee-un. It came from the Greek language and means "ground lion."

The chameleon is not a lion—it isn't even a furry animal. It is a lizard, a lizard with special powers. Most lizards crawl along with their bodies touching the ground, or whatever else they are walking on. Not so the chameleon! It walks with its body lifted.

The body can swell up a great deal. This comes about when a big breath is taken. The swelling of the body may have given rise to the story that it can live for weeks without food.

It eats insects. It has a long tongue with a sticky end. When an insect comes within reach, out shoots the tongue.

The most exciting thing about this animal is its color changes. The common chameleon of Africa is gray-black, but it can change to green or yellow, or to green with yellow spots or stripes.

There has been much study of the color changes. It seems they are brought about by two layers of color cells under the thin skin.

'Magic Lenses' Develop

Third Dimension Effect

Rose-colored glasses are out of date. Lenses which change the visible world and play such strange tricks with light "are optical picket fences," Edwin H. Land, the inventor, of Cambridge, Mass., announced recently.

He claims to have found the answer which older scientists had sought in vain for years—a glass which would permit only certain light vibrations to pass through it. Land, basing his experiments with polarized light on what had been done before, succeeded in producing a cheap substitute for a scientific instrument which up to his time was employed chiefly in the laboratory. He also found many new uses for it.

In his search he had run across a discovery made by Dr. William Herapath over a half century before. The doctor had noticed that a tiny crystal formed by combining iodine with quinine salt would polarize light.

"No sooner did I read about it," said Land, "than I set out to apply it to removing the glare from automobile headlights. The crystals, however, are microscopically small, they are extremely fragile and all efforts to grow them over large areas had been unsuccessful."

Shrinks for Army's Sake

Merlin Vandeweghe found himself confronted with an entirely different problem when he applied for enlistment in the air corps at Lincoln, Neb. "The maximum height for cadets is 6 feet 6 inches," examining doctors told him. "You're 6 feet 6½ inches. Sorry."

"You might try shrinking a little," one of them laughed.

"That's an idea," Vandeweghe said.

A few days later he was back again. This time, to the doctors' amazement, their tape measures read exactly 6 feet 5½. They made sure he was neither bending nor stooping — and they swear he couldn't have been using mirrors.

Flying Cadet Vandeweghe still won't say how he got rid of that three-fourths of an inch.

Alcohol Drinkers

The Swiss, living in a mountainous country and working much out of doors, consume three times as much alcohol as Americans, but they are far from being the heaviest drinkers in Europe.

Statistics published by Tapio Volonmaa, Finnish minister in Bern, in his recent work, "Researches on the Alcohol Question," show that between 1935 and 1937 the average Frenchman drank 20 litres (more than five gallons) of pure alcohol a year.

For other countries the figures were: Spain (1930), 15 litres; Italy, 11; Switzerland, 10; Belgium, 8; Rumania and Greece, 6; Great Britain, 4.5; Hungary and Yugoslavia, 4; Germany and Bulgaria, 3.8; United States and Sweden, 3 to 3.5.

Mattress Burns

Kingston's fire department responded to fire calls Sunday, one of them a false alarm rung in from Box 3641, at Abeel street and Wilbur avenue, at 5:56 o'clock that afternoon. The other call was at 2 o'clock that afternoon from Box 3131, for a fire in the apartment of James Brown at 10 Meadow street, where a mattress on one of the beds ignited. The burning mattress was carried out side by the firemen and the fire extinguished with water. There was slight smoke damage.

Saratoga Indians Play Recreations Here New Year's Night

Keen Rivalry Will Feature Holiday Contest Thursday

Some New Talent Is Sought for Local Teams; Sale of Seats Progresses Rapidly

The fast-stepping Saratoga Indians will make a return visit to the municipal auditorium Thursday, New Year's night to do battle with Manager Jim McNally's Kingston Recreations. The Indians are at present the hottest club in the New York State Pro Basketball League.

There will be a lot of rivalry between these two clubs in this contest on the Broadway boards. It was these two outfits out of which the recent protest game was staged. The Recs will be out to get revenge for their last thumping at the hands of the Spa quintet.

In all probability there will be additional changes in the Recreation set-up. One big change may be made by game time Thursday. It is quite probable that an American League ace will be obtained by the locals to bolster the lagging attack.

Kingston has been trying to get along in recent weeks with a fast clicking backcourt combination of Jim Buckley and Jerry Rizzo and a mediocre forward duo. The Recs are in need of at least one more sure-fire scoring forward who can dig the team out of its present doldrums.

Although there hasn't been any official word released on this matter, it is expected that Carl Malfitano, the St. Francis star, will be given the gate if the Recs find a new player. Malfitano has been off and on in his play.

Jim McNally's play at one of the forward berths is acceptable but none too strong. Jack McGuirk, who formerly played center, has been coming along nicely and appears to be fitting himself nicely in his new role. That leaves one forward position wide open.

The Recreations were aided with the signing of Al Benson, the towering ace, who formerly played with Jersey City and Detroit of the American League. Benson's play at the pivot slot has helped the Recs immeasurably.

Meanwhile, while the Recs are out looking around for some new talent, the Saratoga Indians will come here this week with a power-laden squad. The attack of the Indians is built around Si Boardman, ex-N.Y.U. ace who helped defeat Kingston single-handedly before. Boardman has meant the difference of defeat and victory for Saratoga ever since he joined the Spa cagers.

In addition to Boardman, there is Bibby Martens, Bernie Oppen, Steve Dudas, Buddy Blair and Bill Sharkey. Oppen played a big part in dumping Kingston the last time. Judging from the advance sale of reserved seats, the fans are fast in recognizing this outstanding attraction for this holiday night. Some seats are still available and may be obtained by calling 1682.

Speeders Given Safety Quiz

Tampa, Fla. (AP)—Twenty motorists charged with speeding became "quiz kids" in municipal court here. The judge quizzed each in turn: "How long would it take you to stop your auto the way you were driving it?" One woman, charged with driving 45 miles an hour in a 20-mile zone, said she could stop in three feet. "Madam," the judge replied, "if you stopped that quickly at that speed, you wouldn't be here. The coroner would be holding an inquest over you. The correct answer is 123 feet!"

Sports Roundup

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.

New York, Dec. 29 (Wide World)—There's been a lot of talk about whether a nation geared for war will have any time for sports. . . . Maybe this yarn will help settle the argument: A couple of weeks ago Amby Gilligan, Whitehall, N. Y. High School coach, heard how two of his former pupils, Francis (Hackett) Conlon and Gerald (Barney) Ross, who are in the navy at Hawaii, had helped win their division baseball championship. . . . Big news was that Ross had busted up the deciding game with a triple. . . . After the Pearl Harbor bombing another letter came through from Ross. It said: "Well, the first battle is over and Hackett and I came out O.K. I was only scared for a second and then it was like some high school sport." . . . You can draw your own conclusions about what those kids learned on the playing fields of Whitehall.

Monday Matinee

To settle any question about G-man Atherton's salary for next year, Oregon State will take care of the Pacific Coast Conference's usual Rose Bowl cut, which provides for the commissioner's salary and office expenses. . . . Harold Lambert, Rice basketball guard, played in Madison Square Garden last year, but it was all new to him when he stepped on the floor against Fordham Saturday. He developed a form of sleeping sickness last summer and, although fully recovered, he can't recall any of his experiences here. . . . Babe Ruth has reduced 20 pounds so he'll look like his old self for the movie about Lou Gehrig's life, which goes into production soon. . . . Publicity for the Baer-Louis fight carries the slogan "Remember Pearl Harbor." The fighters' idea probably will be "Remember Griffith Stadium."

Today's Guest Star

John Mooney, Salt Lake Telegram: "Japan's Premier Tojo, being something of a baseball follower as well as a military genius, will no doubt read the opinion held by seven major league managers about the first of July, to wit, there ain't nuthin' you can do to stop them Yanks."

Hot Stove Warmup

Although Don Barnes denies the story that the Browns agreed for $100,000 from the American League, the "Sporting News" quotes a club official as saying the owners have poured in nearly a half million bucks in five years and feel that it's time for the league to do something. . . . Mike Kelly, owner of the Minneapolis American Association club, has been in that league ever since it was founded in 1902. . . . The Reds' statistical department has figured it out that just 10 base hits at the right times would have given Cincinnati the pennant instead of third place last season. . . . John Drohan, Boston travel baseball writer who has just returned to the job after a three-month illness, discovered that what was troubling him was an upside down stomach. . . . Wonder if he got it from riding on that elevator with the Braves?

Hoop-La

The guys who are celebrating the 50th anniversary of the invention of basketball will be embarrassed to learn from the Carnegie Institute that archeologists excavating the Mayan city of Copan, Honduras, have uncovered a court "where a game similar to basketball was played a thousand years ago."

Swing It, Jack

When someone suggested to Manager Jack Hurley that Lem Franklin ought to have a "tune-up" fight before meeting Bob Pastor, Hurley said: "Might be all right, but there's only one opponent I'd consider for it—Joseph Barrow Louis."

Monument to a Soldier

Victoria, B. C. (AP)—Thousands of miles from the Philippines, a stenciled board which may have marked the grave of a U. S. Army officer killed here years ago, washed up on a British Columbia beach. The board, white with black letters, carried this inscription: "In honor of First Lieut. Thomas A. Vicars, Twenty-seventh U. S. Infantry, who was killed in action at Bayan, Island of Mindanao, Philippine Islands, May 2, 1902."

Buy Defense Stamps

Self-interest as well as patriotism urges everybody to buy defense savings stamps and bonds. Our country needs the money now. Save and invest for victory and liberty. Buy now.

FRED PERRY HURT IN TENNIS MATCH

Fred Perry, former world amateur tennis champion, writhes in agony on the Madison Square Garden floor in New York after falling while attempting to return a difficult sideline shot during the third set of his pro net match with Bobby Riggs. The injury, diagnosed as a contusion of the radial nerve of the right forearm—more painful than serious—forced Perry to default to Riggs 6-3, 4-6, 5-4.

Rose Bowl Contest Remains Mystery to Wallace Wade

Duke Blue Devil Coach Says Information on Game Second-Handed as Teams Drill

Durham, N. C., Dec. 29 (AP)—The governor of North Carolina may have told the governor of South Carolina the answer, and a couple of hundred thousand Dixie fans probably agree, but to Coach Wallace Wade this rambler Rose Bowl game is all a mystery.

In fact, the slim soft-spoken sage of the south wouldn't feel at all hurt right this minute if a competent swami game him the low-down on the collision of his Duke and Oregon State's Beavers in Duke Stadium Thursday. To Dixie partisans who figure Duke goes along with death, taxes and fried chicken as sure things, this stand of Coach Wallace is just so much of that stuff you slice thin and put between two pieces of bread, but Wade says the whole picture just doesn't add up.

"I don't see how it can be anything else than a mystery," he pointed out today as the vanguard of a sell-out crowd of 56,000 poured into tobacco town. "After all, whatever we know about Oregon State, and whatever they know about us is all second-hand information. We're both playing a guessing game."

Now this is not a crying towel act. Coach Wade just can't make a prediction, although you can plainly see that if his boys don't win this one, he's going to be mighty surprised. "Yet," he went on, "the Pacific coast champion has beaten the eastern representative in the Rose Bowl three straight years now. And I can't see that there's so much difference this year that they're making us 1 to 3 favorites to change the east's luck.

"You know, this game reminds me of the 1926 game, when my Alabama team beat out Washington, 20 to 19. Oregon State is somewhat the same type club as that one, even to a left-handed passer."

Be that as it may, no one around this football-wacky belt shares Coach Wade's mystification, and those who saw this Duke team sweep its season point out that the chief reason the Blue Devils are a cinch is because of their ends. Of course there's Steve Lach carrying the mail, but the local experts talk about the Duke end-around plays that hit the jackpot and the enemy defenses—in game after game this year.

Tops among these flying wings are Jim Smith, who carried 10 times on end-around plays and averaged 14.3 yards per carry, and Bob Ganti, a six-foot-three 210-pound all Southern Conference performer.

Van Gonsie Wins Island Trap Event

Local Shooter Registers 99 Out of 100

John Van Gonsie of this city broke 99 out of a possible 100 targets and thereby won the high over-all scratch cup at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club Sunday.

In the distance event Van Gonsie gained a leg with a score of 23 out of 25 targets. He stood on the 22-yard line.

The local man also was high in the scratch event with 141. Ed Modjeska, also of this city, placed 13th in the final standings with a score of 74 out of a possible 100 targets.

'Y' Cagers Defeat Albany Top-Hatters by 42-21 Score

Win Is Seventh in Row for Locals; Crackers Lose to Hillsdale by 29 to 26

Jess Shults and the Bock brothers, Charlie and Eddie, led the Y. M. C. A. Varsity basketball team to its seventh straight triumph of the campaign Saturday night over the Albany Top-Hatters by the score of 42 to 21.

Shults, the scoring dynamo for the local quintet, paced his club with 14 points, a role he has been playing ever since the season got under way. Charlie and Eddie Bock accounted for 13, eight and five points respectively.

Albany displayed some power in the first few minutes of play by taking a 5 to 0 lead over the local aggregation. The "Y" team started to move later on in the period and then in the second session to take a 14 to 11 margin as the first half ended.

The Colonial City cagers really opened up in the third quarter and after that it was quite certain that they would come through with another victory. Albany came up with another threat midway in the third quarter by trailing Kingston by a single point.

Ray Rest, Albany guard, led both teams in the scoring column with an individual high of 16 markers. His play kept Kingston on the alert continuously. Local cagers remarked after the game that he was the most outstanding opponent to play here so far this year.

In the preliminary game Saturday night The Roeliff-Jansen team of Hillsdale scored a 29 to 26 victory over the "Y" Crackers. Hillsdale, after trailing 16-14 at the end of the first two periods of play, jumped into the lead in the fourth period.

George Silverberg was high scorer in the game with nine points. Carroll of the winning outfit, collected eight.

DUBLIN 1,100 YEARS OLD

Dublin, Erie, has just learned it should have celebrated in 1941. Kevin Nolan, a student of University College, told the Old Dublin Society that it might be said to have been founded in 841, just 1,100 years ago. It was first a summer base camp for marauding Vikings who pillaged the Irish coast.

It is believed that a scarcity of small mammals, such as rats, mice and lemmings in the Arctic is the cause of the flight of large numbers of snowy owls to Eastern Canada and New England.

READY FOR THE ARMY AIR CORPS

John McLaughry, son of Dartmouth Football Coach Tuss McLaughry, grins as Lieut. H. J. Harvey, army flight examiner, gives him an okay in Boston to try for a place in the Army Air Corps. Young McLaughry went on a diet to make the Army's fighting weight scale of about 190 pounds.

MODENA

Modena, Dec. 29—Local members of the Wallkill Parent-Teacher Association of the Wallkill Centralized Districts, and their families attended a Christmas party and entertainment presented in the auditorium of the Wallkill Central School Monday evening. Byron Clark, musical director of the students, was in charge of the program featuring musical numbers, and which was comprised of three parts. The first part was by elementary school pupils, teachers of five grades, assisting. The second part included scenes of the Nativity, produced in tableaux form. The third party featured a carol service, consisting of 60 mixed voices. Five grade pupils presented "Jackie Frost" and "Away in the Manger"; second grade pupils gave as their selections, "Bunny Rabbit" and "Toyland"; the third grade pupils played "Jingle Bells," with song flutes. Selections of the fourth and fifth grades were "Christmas Carol" and "Jolly Old St. Nicholas." It is estimated a crowd of 300 attended.

The annual Christmas exercises of members of the Modena Methodist Sunday school was presented in the Methodist Church Tuesday evening. Christmas eve the church was beautifully decorated with Christmas greens and decorations in keeping with the Yuletide season. Christmas selections were given by church and junior choirs. Mrs. Frank Venable and Mrs. Lester Arnold were in charge.

Announcements have been received here of the marriage of Miss Kathryn Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Irving Smith of New Paltz to Burton Traver, son of Mr. and Mrs. Lent Traver of Rhinebeck, formerly of this place. Miss Anna Mae Conklin of this place and Henry DeGarmo of Rhinebeck were attendants. Jean Wells of the Modena 4-H Club reports that current club activities include the studying of food values and methods of cooking of vegetables. Christmas wreaths and sprays were sold by club committees to increase their treasury fund.

Mr. and Mrs. James Coey of Newark, N. J., are spending the holiday vacation with relatives here. ## Koch Play Opens In New York City

Collaboration Is Based on Life of Wilson and His Peace Efforts

A new play "In Time to Come," by Howard Koch, formerly of this city, and John Huston opened last night at the Mansfield Theatre, New York city, and received high praise from metropolitan critics.

"In Time to Come," is based upon the life of Woodrow Wilson, World War President, and his struggle to make a just and lasting peace after the war.

Among the criticism of the New York papers were these: Burns Mantle, Daily News, "Last night's audience was plainly appreciative of both play and performance." . . . Richard Watts, Jr., Herald Tribune, "It emerges as a dignified, arresting and remarkably convincing historical document."

Mr. Koch, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick Koch of Schryver Court, this city, is at present on the writing staff of Warner Brothers Studios, Burbank, Calif., where he is engaged on the script for a picture on the life of Mark Twain.

Poughkeepsie Man Held For Grand Jury Action

Ernest Robinson, 30, of 100 Church street, Poughkeepsie, is being held in the county jail awaiting grand jury action on a charge of grand larceny growing out of the alleged taking of tools and equipment from the town of Lloyd shed last week.

The arrest was made Saturday afternoon by Troopers Metzger and L. Baker of the B.C.I., who arraigned Robinson before Justice of the Peace Walter R. Seaman of Highland. There the defendant waived examination and was held to await grand jury action and returned to jail.

Early Christmas morning tools were missed from the Town of Lloyd shed and Saturday morning Frank Marx, superintendent of the Highland Water Works notified Trooper Metzger that during the past few days cast iron pipe, a water meter and two batteries from snow trucks had been missed. The matter was investigated and later some of the material was discovered in a Poughkeepsie junk yard. There it was learned the material had been brought in by Robinson and the officers went to the Robinson home in Poughkeepsie and he was questioned. Officers say he admitted taking some of the material and loading it on his truck Christmas morning. His arrest followed.

Letter Commends City for Alloting Money for Beds

General John F. O'Ryan, director of the state council of civilian defense, has written a letter to Mayor C. J. Heiselman congratulating the mayor and the Common Council for the action taken in appropriating money to be used in equipping the municipal auditorium for a 100-bed emergency hospital in case of need.

The communication follows:
State of New York
STATE COUNCIL OF DEFENSE
Office of the Director of Civilian Defense

444 Broadway, Albany, N. Y.
December 24, 1941.

Hon. Conrad J. Heiselman,
Mayor of Kingston,
Kingston, N. Y.

My Dear Mr. Mayor:

Your letter addressed to Governor Lehman was referred to me. Congratulations are due you and the Common Council on the action taken in appropriating equipment for 100-bed emergency hospital to be located in the Kingston Municipal Auditorium.

You and your assistants apparently do not intend to gamble with that hazard that may eventuate as a reality. Furthermore, the equipment you are acquiring will not be lost or wasted if we are fortunate enough not to be attacked from the air.

I am notifying all other councils, city and county, throughout the state of the wise action taken by the city of Kingston.

Very truly yours,

(Signed) JOHN F. O'RYAN.

F. D. R. Promises To Redeem Isles

an encouraging ring and aroused all kinds of conjecture.

"The Japanese government," the announcement noted, "is circulating rumors for the obvious purpose of persuading the United States to disclose the location and intentions of the American Pacific fleet. It is obvious that these rumors are intended for and directed at the Philippine Islands."

"The Philippines may rest assured that while the United States navy will not be tricked into disclosing vital information, the fleet is not idle."

First Statement

This was the first official statement on the fleet since the week after the Pearl Harbor attack of December 7. Then Navy Secretary Knox disclosed that the main body of the fleet with its battleships, cruisers, aircraft carriers and submarines was "at sea seeking contacts with the enemy."

At first glance, the navy announcement last night was interpreted in some sources as a hint that it still might be possible to strike a telling blow which would put an entirely new aspect on the situation in the Philippines. They noted, in passing, that Japan's widely scattered invasion thrusts in the South Pacific required substantial naval support, forcing a reduction in the strength of the main enemy fleet.

There was no disposition here to believe that the U. S. Pacific fleet intended to play into the enemy's hands and enter the South China Sea, which is rimmed thickly with Japanese air and sea bases. However, the navy's announcement seemed to hold out the possibility of action soon.
